MURPHY ENTERS MICHIGAN CAMPAIGN

FAMILY OF 8 WIPED OUT BY MAD HUSBAND

ROOMER SLAIN ALSO IN MURDER ORGY

Indiana Harbor, Ind., July 9 (AP)—Celestino P. Gonzalez, 36, apparently maddened by jealousy and ill health, police said, hacked his wife and six children to death with an axe today, then shot and killed Jose Aro, a roomer in their home, and himself.

Gonzalez killed Aro in the locker room of the Inland Steel company, where both were employed, as work shifts were changing and in the presence of several other employes. No words were exchanged as Gonzalez walked up to Aro, fired four shots in his body and then turned the gun on himself. Both died instantly.

Police had some trouble identifying the two men before learning their address.

Finally they went to the Gonzalez home but found the doors locked and left.

Killed in Their Sleep

Late this afternoon they returned to the home found it still locked, and battered in a door.

On the floor and in the beds of the small house were the body of Mrs. Gonzalez and their six children, all dead, all hacked and mutilated with a bloody axe which lay nearby. The children, ranging in age from 2 to 17 years, were four boys and two girls. There was no particular evidence of struggle and police surmised that Mrs. Gonzalez and the older children had been killed as they slept.

As they reconstructed the crime Gonzalez arose before the rest of the family—Aro had gone to work at midnight—obtained the axe and killed his family. Then washing the bloodstains from himself and taking his pistol he went to the steel company. Aro's shift had just come off work and the latter was changing clothes as Gonzalez rushed in and killed him.

Police said Gonzalez had been in ill health and they assumed he either had lost his mind or had a fancied or real cause for jealousy of Aro, who had lived with the family for some time.

Furniture Sales Reported Brisk

Chicago, July 9 (AP)—Lawrence H. Whiting, president of the American Furniture Mart, announced today that sales during the first four days of the national furniture show exceeded $36,000,000.

With a record number of buyers registered, Whiting said "sales are running beyond expectations. Furniture manufacturers are confident the coming six months will retain the momemtum gained during the first half of the year."

The number of visitors at the furniture show neared the 7,000 mark today. Officials of the International Home Furnishings Exposition, held in conjunction iwth the furniture show, said the total registration of buyers for the first three days—Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday—was 4,800, a gain of 27 percent over last January and of 65 percent over a year ago.

Attendance at the furniture show durinig the first three days was officially announced at 5,400.

Two Beheaded For Murder In Germany

Trier, Germany, July 9 (AP)—A grandmother and a grandson were beheaded today and a third person was sentenced to life imprisonment for murder.

Approlonia Schu, 51, the grandmother, was executed for the killing of the three illegitimate children of her daughter, Anna. The daughter was given life imprisonment.

Josef Breuer, 19, was beheaded after conviction on a charge of murdering and robbing his grandmother.

Meanwhile in Mainz a verdict of death was returned in the trial of Frieda Vogler, 40, for the alleged poisoning of her aged husband and stepson.

In Hanover a 15-year-old boy faced a murder trial after police said he confessed strangling his grandmother with a clothesline.

WELSH STICKS AS CANDIDATE

Will Not Withdraw as Result of Murphy Announcement

Detroit, July 9, (AP)—The candidacy of George W. Welsh of Grand Rapids, former Republican lieutenant-governor, for the Democratic nomination for governor, received the indorsement of two Detroit congressmen tonight.

Representatives George G. Sadowski of the first district, and John C. Lesinski of the sixteenth, both Democrats, announced their intentions at a dinner for Welsh which attracted an overflow crowd of some 2,000 to the Masonic temple on a hot night.

Welsh, opening his campaign, referred to the entrance of Frank Murphy of Detroit into the race today and said, "I am in the fight as a candidate for the nomination at the solicitation of no one. I ask no help from Washington—rather I expect to give help to the national ticket. x x x I assumed that the purpose of the primaries was to allow our voters to make their own selection of a nominee and I am ready to stand by their decision."

He pledged support, if elected, to many of the social aspects of the Roosevelt program, mentioning the WPA and CCC, and adequate aid for the aged and the blind. He criticized Governor Frank D. Fitzgerald for failing to call a special session of the legislature to enact enabling laws.

Assails Republicans

Reciting his years of experience in state and city offices, Welsh said should he be elected, "I shall begin the duties of the office backed by more years of public training and experience in legislative and administrative positions, both municipal and state, than any other individual who has yet held that office or who is now mentioned for it.

"I can further state that the Republican machine at Lansing would rather face any one as the Democratic nominee for governor in November than face me."

Assailing what he termed the manipulations of Republican office-holders at Lansing, Welsh continued:

"Perhaps the most brazen example of the complete disregard of the people's interest is the refusal by the politically-controlled public utilities commission to grant 100 per cent natural gas to the people of my home town, Grand Rapids.

"With millions of feet of natural gas available in the western Michigan fields, there is no market for it. The farmers and land owners have been forced to cap their wells."

Fechner Leaves On Inspection Trip

Washington, July 9 (AP)—Robert Fechner, director of emergency conservation work, and Fred Morrell, acting chief of the forestry service, left today on a two-week inspection tour of Civilian Conservation Corps camps in Michigan, Wisconsin and Minnesota.

They planned to stop first at Lansing, Mich., and proceed from there to the Manistee National forest. Other Michigan stops will include the Roscommon state fire experiment station, Wilderness state park, state forests in upper Michigan, Marquette National forest, Mackinac state forest, the Seney marsh wild life refuge, Ottawa National forest and Gogebic state park and the Hiawatha National forest.

In Wisconsin they planned to visit the Wisconsin state forest at Trout Lake and the Chequamegon National forest. The two men will go to Duluth and from there to the Superior and Chippewa National forests and state forests in Minnesota.

The inspection trip is expected to end at St. Paul.

SOME BITS OF DROUGHT AREA GET SHOWERS

RELIEF FOR UPPER PENINSULA LIKELY TODAY

Chicago, July 9 (AP)—Scattered showers cheered bits of drought's western domain today as the record breaking seven day heat siege assailed eastern states with the hottest weather of the summer.

Deaths for the past three days of blistering weather totalled at least 206 and the list was growing steadily as 113 degrees was measured on the official thermometer at Aberdeen, S. D.

Temperatures from Michigan east to the seaboard soared toward new high marks for the year. Adrian, Mich., reported 106 degrees. New York City's 102.3 was a new all time top. Washington, D. C., had 104. Philadelphia perspired in 101. Several eastern cities counted their first heat deaths of the year. Newark, N. J., had an all time heat record of 105.

U. P. Expects Rain

In the drought belt, precipitation ranging from a trace at Rapid City, S. D., to 2.42 inches at Effingham, Ill., stirred hopes for late and forage crops. Devils Lake in North Dakota, all counties of which have been designated as "drought emergency" areas, got a substantial 1.48 inch fall. There were showers also in Minnesota, Indiana, Iowa, Missouri, Utah, and Nebraska.

But they weren't enough, said Forecaster J. R. Lloyd of the weather bureau station here. He said that while more rains were sighted for North Dakota, parts of Minnesota, Wisconsin, and upper Michigan tonight or tomorrow, they would have no material effect on the general drought.

The dry spell, which already has rolled up losses exceeding $300,000,000 and made government dependents of 204,000 farm families, continued to dominate the domestic grain trade.

Wheat resumed its advance after yesterday's setbacks, when later advices from Canada indicated that 10,000,000 to 12,000,000 acres of prairie wheat were still in grave danger despite Wednesday's rains. July delivery closed here at $1.06 1-8 to $1.06¼. With prices generally 3-8 to 1 5-8 higher. About 20 cents a bushel has been added to wheat's value here since drought destruction got underway in the northwest spring wheat belt a month ago.

Late field reports continued to emphasize need for rain within a week if the important corn crop was to be saved.

Aid Program Launched

Meanwhile, the government's aid program was underway and President Roosevelt announced in Washington he would review its progress at a conference with directors Friday.

U. S. Senator Elmer Benson of Minnesota, declaring the crop prospects continued to fade in the west central portion of his state, started on an inspection tour. He said he felt Washington authori-

RECORD VOTE IS PREDICTED

Popular Poll of More Than 43 Millions Expected

BY E. B. HAAKINSON
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

Washington, July 9 (AP)—A record popular vote in the November presidential election was predicted today by William Tyler Page, minority clerk of the house, who has been watching the ballot totals for years.

Page said that from 3,000,000 to 5,000,000 more ballots would be counted in November than in 1932, when there were 39,816,522.

These would boost the total to about 43,000,000 or 45,000,000.

Simon Michelet, president of the National Get-Out-the-Vote club, said he expected a popular vote of 41,000,000 to 42,000,000. For twelve years, as a hobby, he has been campaigning to make the American people "voting-minded."

Page said the number of persons eligible to vote this fall would be betwen 65,000,000 and 70,000,000.

Michelet estimated that in past elections the "stay-at-homes" often were almost as numerous as those who used the ballot.

His estimate of the number of eligible voters who did not vote was in line with a census tally of more than 73,000,000 persons of "voting age" in 1930. The total votes in 1928 and 1932 were slightly under 37,000,000 and 40,000,000, respectively.

Son Born to Dionnes At Callander, Ontario

Callander, Ont., July 9 (AP)—It's a boy at the Dionne's—just one, this time.

Amid the taciturnity for which Papa Oliva Dionne and his wife, Elzire, are well known in the north country and elsewhere, a brother to the famous little sisters was born at 3:25 a. m. today.

The new baby, eleventh of the living Dionne children, sent up his first sharp wail in the modest farm-house where the quintuplets were born two years ago last May 28.

Dionne Non Committal

Across the road, 100 yards away, the quins slept sweetly in their modern nursery, guarded, as always, by agents of the Ontario government. They are "wards of the king."

It was practically all day before any one outside the intimate family circle knew about the new arrival who, it was understood had the sturdy physique and attractive features of his famous French-Canadian sisters.

Dionne, who defied a measles quarantine recently to climb through their nursery window, had nothing immediately to say.

When the quintuplets were born he groaned: "I'm the kind of a fellow they should put in jail."

But lately, he has expressed recurrent resentment because the government, instead of the parents, are bringing up the little girls.

Dr. Allan Roy Dafoe, who brought the quintuplets into a snow-clad world, was not present at today's delivery.

Instead, it was Dr. J. E. I. Royal who attended the birth. A nurse Delia Charette of Callander, aided him.

Both mother and son, who is the third Dionne boy, were doing well, it was reported last today. The five other children, all of whom were stricken with measles recently, have recovered.

LANDON LIKES BENEFIT PLAN

Bounties for Soil Conservation Endorsed by Candidate

BY WILLIAM L. BEALE
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

Topeka, Kas., July 9 (AP)—An agreement that farmers should be paid bounties for soil conserving practices emerged today from a conference between Gov. Alf M. Landon and Frank O. Lowden on 1936 campaign issues.

For more than two hours, the Republican presidential nominee talked with the veteran Illinois leader.

At the conclusion, Lowden told a press conference they were "agreed" on a farm program, and in their views on concentration of power in Washington and "the awful extravagance in government over which' all of our people are aroused."

"Will you campaign for Gov. Landon?" Lowden was asked.

Outlook Hopeful

"Sure," he replied. "I don't know whether I will travel much but I will make some speeches."

Lowden added his belief that the outlook for a Landon-Knox victory was "very hopeful" and "improving from our standing all the time."

"People believe in him," he said, with a gesture toward Landon.

The press conference was held in the governor's office. Lowden did the talking. Part of the time Landon sat behind his desk at the side of the former Illinois governor, but for the most part he moved about, greeting visitors in the outer office.

When the question about farm benefit payments arose, Landon was in his chair. Lowden, who said details of the farm program were not discussed, was asked whether it embraced benefit payments.

"We agreed that to get land into legumes or permanent grasses," he replied, "bounties would have to be paid tand the country would benefit. Is that correst, governor?"

"That's right," Landon said.

"Would that be a perment program?" Lowden was asked.

"Oh, yes," Lowden replied, this time Landon's concurrence was not sought.

Veteran Refuses To Pay Alimony

Detroit, July 9 (AP)Fred Smelesky went to jail today for the fifth time in seven years for failue to pay alimony to his divorced wife, who lives at Rogers City, Mich., with their three children.

Smelesky, who recently received a soldiers' bonus, was sentenced to spend six months in jail unless he pays $200 at once.

"I won't do it," Smelesky said. "I would rather go to jail."

Canadian Drought Situation Serious

Winnipeg, July 9 (AP)—Canada's drought belt stretched today from the western fringe of the prairies to the farm lands of eastern Ontario, relieved only here and there by showers in Manitoba and Saskatchewan.

Ontario felt the full blast of baking sunlight. Temperatures in many cities reached 100 and higher. Small fruits, field crops and gardens were badly hit in many parts of the province.

Quebec and Maritime provinces for the most part have escaped the drought hazard, though the temperature has been high in the interior.

Rain in the west touched southeastern Saskatchewan and southern Manitoba. There was, however, no indication of any general downpour. Wheat prices rose again in Winnipeg.

Toronto felt a new heat record of 105.

New England Has Electrical Storm

Boston, July 9. (AP)—A raging electrical storm—the most destructive of the year—struck suddenly in New England tonight, killing one man and damaging orchards, crops and buildings in scores of communities. Maine, alone, escaped.

A screaming gale that accompanied the storm uprooted trees, blocked main highways, interrupted the telephone and electrical service and wrought untold damage to fertile farmlands in the five states.

It came as New England counted its dead at 17 from a twice-interrupted heat wave and it raised that total by one.

At Baldwinville, Mass., Bronislaw Florczyk, 48, died when he picked up a live wire ripped from a pole by a falling tree. Worcester was hard-hit.

Governor's Party In Escanaba Today

Parade at 7:30 P. M.; Mass Meeting at Escanaba Junior High School at 8 O'clock

Gov. Frank D. Fitzgerald, of Michigan and a distinguished company of state officials and Republican leaders of Michigan, will be the guests of Republicans of Delta county today. All plans for the reception of Michigan's governor and members of his party have been completed by members of the Republican County committee, under the direction of County Chairman Ole J. Thorsen, of Wells, and Arthur J. Goulais, city chairman, and every indication points to a rousing greeting being accorded the state's chief executive at the mass meeting to be staged at the W. W. Oliver auditorium at the Junior high school building at 8 o'clock tonight.

Republicans of Delta, Menominee and Dickinson counties are joining forces for the demonstration in Delta county tonight and assurances were received yesterday that large delegations from both of the neighboring counties will join Delta county's people today in paying homage to the governor on the occasion of his first official visit to this section of the peninsula since his election to the governorship. While Gov. Fitzgerald and members of his party are not scheduded to arrive in the city until late this afternoon, Mrs. C. L. Barber, of Lansing, vice chairman of the Republican State Central Committee who is making the tour of the peninsula with the governor's party, will come to Escanaba in time to serve as the guest of honor at a luncheon to be served by the Republican women of Delta county, at the Sherman hotel at 1 o'clock this afternoon.

Banquet at 6 p. m.

Immediately after the arrival of members of the official party in the city, Gov. Fitzgerald and Howard C. Lawrence of the Republican State Central Committee, are scheduled to confer with members of the Republican county committees of Delta, Menominee and Dickinson counties, at the Delta hotel, at 4 o'clock. At the same hour William Bishop, of Alpena, chairman of the Young Republicans club of Michigan, will confer with officers and members of the Young Republican clubs of the three counties.

At 6 o'clock a banquet for the governor and members of his party will be staged at the Delta hotel, when in the after banquet program, Claude W. Hawkins, of Gladstone, will serve as toastmaster, introducing, Hon. Hal Smith, of Detroit, treasurer of the Republican State Central Committee, who will deliver the

FIRE DESTROYS TIMBER LANDS

1400 Acres Burned in Hiawatha National Forest

Milwaukee, July 9. (AP)—Regional Forester Lyle F. Watts reported tonight that fires were raging in two national forests of upper Michigan and that the prolonged drought and heat had developed acute fire conditions in national and state forests.

NO SMOKING

Due to the extreme fire hazard the Upper Michigan National Forests will be closed to smoking and camp fires without permit effective today except at improved camp grounds and places of habitation, the U. S. Forestry Service announced yesterday. The continued drought and high temperatures have created extremely hazardous conditions and make necessary the closing of Upper Michigan National Forests to smoking and camp fires. Violation of these orders is punishable under federal laws.

A fire of "serious proportions" was burning on the Hiawatha unit of the upper Michigan national forest in the Bay de Noc slash area northeast of Escanaba, Watts said. A 250-acre fire on the Huron national forest in Michigan was being fought by 200 men, he added.

Fire fighting equipment consisting of plows, fire pumps and hose were expressed from here to Escanaba where a force of 700 men planned to make the major attack on the fire tomorrow at 4 a. m., an hour when fires have been found easiest to bring under control.

Forest Supervisor Paul A. Wohler reported he had 200 men on duty at the Hiawatha unit and that the number would be increased by 500 before morning.

Because of the hazards, Watts closed the Chequamegon and Nicolet national forests in Wisconsin to smoking and camping. The state conservation commission followed suit at state forests.

GOVERNOR HELPS

Lansing, July 9. (AP)—Governor Fitzgerald joined the state conservation department today in emergency measures to curb forest fire hazards.

In conformance with power given him by the 1935 legislature, the governor's office issued an order forbidding camp fires and the use of smoking materials. The order included:

"The prohibition of all camp fires except at authorized camp grounds; all pipe, cigar or cigarette smoking except at places of habitation, authorized improved camp grounds or in any automobile or vehicle operating on state, county, township or private highways and roads; the throwing or causing to be thrown from any such vehicle any matches, ashes, burning tobacco or other burning material; and all burning of rub-

The convention is to follow closely the primary election of September 3.

ILLINOIS STATE OFFICIAL SLAIN

Representative Shot By Shotgun While Riding in Auto

Chicago, July 9 (AP)—The two shotgun slugs that stopped his 60-mile-an-hour race against gangland death were the only clues tonight to the men who slew John M. Bolton, the Illinois state representative who wanted to license betting on the races in Chicago.

The slugs, and the wadding which went with them, were taken from Bolton's shattered head after his driverless automobile careened into a light post on a west side street early today.

The killers, who had sped along beside him waiting their chance, never slackened their speed when their job was done. They rounded a corner on two wheels and disappeared.

From the slugs and wadding police might learn the type of gun, and its guage. But there the trail ended.

There were many rumors that Bolton—sponsor of a bill to license race betting establishments in Chicago—had died because of his own interests in gambling; that he was killed because he defended his friends from Capone mobsters who tried to "muscle in" on their territory.

Six Saw Execution

To all these the police answer was the same:

"We have no way of knowing."

Six persons witnessed the end of Bolton's last ride. Although the details differed, the execution was swift and expert, like that of Rep. A. J. Prignano, who was shot down by his wife's side on the steps of their home in December.

They were also looking for persons familiar with Bolton's nightly routine, a drive from home to a political conference spot at South Ashland avenue and Taylor streets.

Fellow legislators came forward with high praise for Bolton. He neither smoked nor drank, they said, and was apparently happy with his wife and two adopted children. They could think of no enemies.

PLAN TO RUN FOR GOVERNOR IS ANNOUNCED

EX-DETROIT MAYOR GETS LEAVE IN PHILIPPINES

BY NATHAN ROBERTSON
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

Washington, July 9 (AP)—Frank Murphy of Detroit today submitted his resignation as high commissioner to the Philippine Islands to run for governor of Michigan, but President Roosevelt refused to accept it until after the election.

The former Detroit mayor told the president in a personally delivered letter that he was running for governor because he believed that "continuance of your leadership and the success of the Democratic party" in the coming elections were of "first importance to the people of Michigan and the country at large."

His resignation was made subject to the president's approval and effective at his pleasure.

Leave of Absence

In a letter sent to Murphy later in the day, the president said he was holding the resignation "in abeyance." He added that the high commissioner would be given a leave of absence without pay for two months beginning September 5.

This would postpone action on the resignation until after the November election. The president promised a "reluctant acceptance" of it at that time "if developments should compel."

The exchange of letters marked the culmination of a drive by Roosevelt campaign managers to get Murphy to run as Democratic candidate for governor in Michigan this fall. He will formally announce his entry in the race tomorrow at Detroit.

His action left a vacancy in the Philippine commissionship for at least the next four months. Murphy has recommended the appointment of J. Weldon Jones, his financial advisor, as acting commissioner.

Jones, a former insular auditor, has been acting as high commissioner without formal appointment by the president since Murphy left Manila two months ago. A recent act of congress authorized the naming of an acting commissioner in the absence of the high commissioner.

Murphy announced his resignation to newsmen after a lengthy conference with the president in the morning. The president's action did not become known until Murphy returned later to get the chief executive's reply.

At that time the White House made public Murphy's letter, in which his decision to run for governor was disclosed formally for the first time. He had refused earlier to announce his plans definitely.

"Believing," Murphy said, "that continuance of your leadership and the success of the Democratic party in the coming state and national elections are of first importance to the people of Michigan and the country at large, I have decided to make myself available to the Democratic party as a candidate for the office of governor of Michigan in the event I should be chosen at the party primary in September.

"This decision has been reached after careful consideration and numerous conferences with party leaders in my own state who have assured me that my candidacy would meet with the general approval of members and friends of the Democratic party in Michigan and would materially promote the success of our cause."

Mixed Feeling

In his reply, addressed "my dear Frank," the president expressed mixed feelings over Murphy's resignation. He said his regret was "tempered" by the feeling that his

Hanging Case Is Called Suicide

St. Louis, Mich., July 9 (AP)—Police officials abandoned tonight a theory that the hanging of Adam Mufanski, 59, might have been "arranged" to disguise a murder.

Coroner Howard Potter said he and Sheriff William Nestle were satisfied that Mufanski, a beet field worker, had taken his own life. Their suspicions were aroused at first because his feet were only about an inch above the ground, but there were no marks on the ground to show he had made a death struggle.

Potter explained, however, that he now was convinced the branch of the young tree had sagged under the weight and lowered the body. He thought Mufanski was dead two days before the body was found.

Hearst, State Police And Black Legion Are Criticized by Unions

With the election of officers and a large list of resolutions and committee reports disposed of, delegates to the annual convention of the Michigan Federation of Labor climaxed their four-day meeting here last evening with attendance at an entertainment program at the Escanaba Golf club.

William P. Frost, Detroit, and John Reid, Lansing, were reelected president and secretary-treasurer, respectively, at yesterday afternoon's business session.

The following 10 vice presidents were named: First, George Dean, Detroit; second, J. Lyle Sage, Battle Creek; third, Joseph Ashmore, Jackson; fourth, Clifford Beaudin, Escanaba; fifth, Michael J. Burke, Flint; sixth, John Fitzgerald, Lansing; seventh, William D. Brown, Detroit; eighth, John Sheperak, Detroit; ninth, Edwin Kuhnlein, Detroit; and tenth, George Grosser, Kalamazoo.

President Frost and Secretary Treasurer Reid were elected as delegate and alternate, respectively, to the American Federation of Labor convention.

Jackson, Grand Rapids and Ann Arbor were selected as the auditing cities. Flint was awarded the next convention of the federation to be held in February, 1938.

Some Lively Discussions

The closing day's sessions of the convention were enlivened by some spirited discussions of a set of resolutions, condemning the Hearst publications for their alleged anti-labor editorial policies, endorsing the Committee of Industrial Organization's campaign for organizing the steel and other industries, demanding a federal investigation of the Black Legion and the abolition of the Michigan State Police.

The argument over the resolution assailing William Randolph Hearst hinged on the question as to whether the federation should go on record as criticizing the Detroit Times and placing it on the unfair list or whether it should be toned down to a mere criticism of the editorial policies of all Hearst publications. Fear of creating embarrassment for union employees of the Detroit Times caused the convention to decide to take the latter course.

Expunged From Record

All discussion of the question of industrial unionism was expunged from the official record of the convention upon the order of President Frost after the convention had voted non-concurrence with the resolution, which offered the federation's congratulations to the Committee for Industrial Organization for launching a campaign to unionize the steel industry, which was condemned as being an "example of the exploitation of labor."

As soon as the chairman of the resolutions committee had completed the reading of the resolution, John Collins, delegate from the Detroit Bricklayers Union, jumped to his feet to offer vigorous objection to the resolution, which he termed as not a proper matter to be injected into the proceedings of the convention. He warned that it was fought with trouble and that the question of C. I. O. could be only decided at the next convention of the American Federation of Labor.

D. F. Erskine, delegate of Detroit Motion Picture Operators Union No. 199, joined Collins in the assault, with the declaration that the Michigan Federation of Labor had no authority to promote the campaign of the Committee on Industrial Organization. He then charged that the supposed strife between President William Green of the A. F. of L. and Chairman John L. Lewis of the C. I. O. was merely a concoction of the newspapers of the country, with the intent of splitting the ranks of labor.

Martel Explains Situation

Frank X. Martel, president of the Detroit and Wayne County Federation of Labor, who intimated that he was in accord with the principle of industrial unionism, cautioned the delegates against taking any sides on this controversial question, explaining that the matter has to be decided at the convention of the American Federation of Labor, to which the Michigan federation will send its delegates. Martel predicted that the executive council would reach some agreement on the C. I. O. question, pointing out that there is no probability that the council would expel any of the unions opposing the crafts plan of organization, because it would mean the loss of a large membership and per capita tax revenues.

George Helm, delegate of Ann Arbor Teachers No. 284, who had presented the resolution, explained that, since he was a comparatively new in the labor movement, he did not fully understand the technicalities involved with regard to the C. I. O. question. He added that he had no desire to push through a resolution which was not in conformity with the rules of the convention. Soon thereafter, President Frost ordered that the discussion be kept off the record, and the matter was dropped.

State Police Assailed

The verbal attack upon the Michigan State Police was then launched by John Reid, secretary-treasurer of the federation, when he was advised by a delegate that the troopers had been sent to Coldwater, where union employees of the Homer Furnace company were on strike. Reid said that this action was in contradiction to a promise given him by Governor Frank D. Fitzgerald last February that state police would be kept away from strikes.

Frank Wade, commissioner of the Department of Labor and Industry, came to the defense of the administration, with the explanation that the state police do not go to strike zones unless called by local law enforcement authorities when there appears to be danger of destruction of property and lives.

Wade than aroused the wrath of Martel when he dropped the remark that state police would respond to calls of local authorities no matter if the governor is "Frank D. Fitzgerald or Frank Murphy." Martel said he was indebted to Commissioner Wade for mentioning the name of "the next governor of Michigan," and declared that there are many factory laws that are not observed but the state police are never out to enforce them. He referred to conditions in the automobile factories, where, he charged, employees are dying from cyanide poisoning.

Wade countered with the assertion that the department of labor had investigated all the complaints of unions against unhealthful and unsafe working conditions in these factories and had ordered the necessary changes made. He added that the department had only seven inspectors due to the fact that the budget had been cut by the previous Democratic administration.

Verbal assaults upon the use of state police during strikes were made by various delegates for several minutes longer, and then announcement was made that a resolution was being prepared to advocate abolition of the trooper organization.

Ask Black Legion Probe

There was also some discussion as to whether the Black Legion was to some extent a strike-breaking organization or an outgrowth of the espionage system employed by some large automobile manufacturers. A resolution, asking the LaFollette committee to make an investigation of the hooded organization and providing for the expulsion of any M. F. of L. members found to be members of the organization, was adopted.

The convention also passed a resolution, urging the appropriation of additional funds by the legislature for the state department of labor and industry to permit the providing of factory inspection in the Upper Peninsula on the same basis as in the Lower Peninsula.

A resolution, criticizing the two major parties with failure to solve the economic problems and provide adequate security for labor and advocating independent political organization through the formation of a labor party, was read to the convention, without concurrence of the resolutions committee. The convention then amended it by simply proposing that a committee of three be appointed to investigate the possibilities of a third party and to report back to the 1938 meeting.

The resolutions committee also expressed non-concurrence with the resolution, endorsing the Fitzgerald administration, with the explanation that the matter was of a controversial and political nature and not in conformity with the non-partisan policies of the federation. The convention affirmed the committee's non-concurrence with the resolution. The expected dispute over the introduction of the resolution failed to materialize.

The committee on organization submitted a report, expressing the conviction that many local unions in the state could be induced to join the federation with mutual benefit. Martel then read a telegram from Homer Martin, president of International Union of United Automobile Workers, who stated that the automobile workers are anxious to align themselves with the Michigan Federation of Labor and the American Federation of Labor. Michael Taylor, Muskegon, only delegate of the United Automobile Workers at the convention, then arose and expressed the desires of his fellow workers for affiliation with the federation.

Gov. Fitzgerald will deliver an address at the mass meeting in which is expected to give an accounting of his stewardship of state affairs which has resulted in the adoption of a strict "pay as you go" policy for all state departments for the past year and a half and has made possible the building up of a sizable cash balance in the state treasury for the first time in the history of Michigan. In addition to the address by Gov. Fitzgerald, Hon. Claris Adams, of Detroit, recognized as one of the most able platform orators in Michigan, will discuss both national and state affairs, in an address that prove one of the lights of tonight's program.

Following the mass meeting Gov. Fitzgerald and members of his party will go to Terrace Gardens, where the day's demonstration for the chief executive will be climaxed with an informal Governor's ball. Particularly elaborate preparations have been made for this feature of the day's plans and it is expected that the most beautiful ball room in the peninsula, will be packed to the limit.

ESKIL DENIES DEAL

Iron Mountain—Harold Eskil, Breitung township supervisor whose candidacy for the Republican nomination of Dickinson county representative in the state legislature led Henry Lahti, of Kingsford, vice chairman of the county Republican committee, to resign and switch his own candidacy for the office to the Democratic ticket, came out today with a reply.

In a letter to J. A. Payant, county Republican chairman, Lahti made accusations of unfair treatment and charged that Eskil violated an agreement that he was not to be a candidate for representative in return for Lahti's support of his slip candidacy for supervisor.

GOVERNOR IS GREETED HERE

Full House Listens to Speeches at GOP Rally

Newberry, July 9—In spite of the heat a crowd estimated at between three and four hundred persons gathered for the four-county Republican rally in Newberry on Wednesday night. A capacity crowd filled the tables in the dining room of the community building and listened to the speeches given by the members of the party of Governor Frank D. Fitzgerald in which the new deal policies and the personal philosophy of President Roosevelt were lambasted and the Republican platform and candidate, Governor Alf Landon of Kansas, were praised.

The first address of the evening was given by Hal H. Smith, treasurer of the League of Republican Clubs, for the state. "Poverty is better than regimentation," said Mr. Smith. "Civilization never follows the dole. Civilization follows freedom even in poverty. We have come to the upper peninsula for the inspiration necessary to regain the position lost four years ago, to throw out false gods of a false democracy, that the government of the people, by the people and for the people, by a Republican administration, shall not perish from the earth." Mr. Smith was introduced by Chief Justice Louis H. Fead of Lansing, master of sented by Lawrence Redmond, chairman of the Luce County Republican committee.

Judge Fead himself addressed the rally which convened in the auditorium following the banquet. "This is the most important political campaign since the Civil war," state Judge Fead. "It has two basic questions: Shall constitutional government live? And, Shall honesty, frankness and integrity be returned to the seat of government? We will hear quite a lot about the forgotten man. We must not forget the New Jersey tailor who was thrown into jail because he pressed a pair of pants for five cents less than his neighbor. We must not forget the widow in New York who was arrested for making paper flowers in her home to feed her little children. We will hear a lot about the farmer and the business man. At no time has the New Deal presented a program which has benefitted the farmer and the small business man, nor the common man. And for six months the press of the country were forced for the right of freedom.

Governor Frank D. Fitzgerald told the audience that he was speaking not as a candidate for reelection but as "your governor and a plain Republican, here to aid in this campaign. This will not be a partizan address. It will be a talk which I could deliver to Democrats. I am making no promises except one I will continue to do the best that I can in Lansing, believing that to be the best kind of politics. I am not going to carry on an active campaign."

Outlining the financial condition of the state when he took office in 1934 Mr. Fitzgerald stated that for the first time in 25 years the state budget was "in the black." He gave former Governor Comstock credit for passing the sales tax but stated "that was the only thing he could do at that time." The surprise of the legislature when they woke up the morning following adjournment and found that they had put into his hands the power to cut all appropriations so that the expenditures would come within the income, was pictured. "It served them right!" he said. "There should not be so much hilarity during the last hours of the legislature. They should remain seriously on the job until the clock strikes twelve." This pay-as-you-go plan has made it possible for a balance to be on hand when the books were closed for the year.

"Relief has been abused," statde the governor. "I do not believe in letting any worthy person hunger but I would remove all of the unworthy from relief rolls." This brought applause from the audience. Old age assistance should be increased from its present of 12, 16 to 20 dollars a month to at least $30 in his opinion. In speaking for himself he asked his friends to remember that a man is not entitled to a second term unless he deserves. "If a governor cannot show results in two years he surely will not in four and should not be returned to office," he stated.

The last speech of the rally was given by Claric Adams, president of the Michigan League of Republican clubs. Mr. Adams concerned himself with national affairs and this was the hot spot of the evening, being second only to Judge Fead's sardonic utterances concerning the present national administration. "Democracy is on the defence. It is challenged by a dozen new deals in a dozen countries under a dozen leaders. American liberty will not long rule if home rule is destroyed. The supreme court decision against the NRA put us back in the American plan. But our explosive president is savagly impatient with the restrictions of the Constitution. He always leaves us in doubt as to his intentions. He wants a set of judicial rubber stamps to complete his collection. He appears to want a set of Michigan rubber stamps but this time the Republican party will do the collecting."

"Roosevelt has already broken down every safeguard of a free government. Under the new deal the laws are written in secret and passed by a "must" mandate. Roosevelt is preparing the way for a Stalin, a Hitler. The real issue is Roosevelt or the republic. The Constitution and the new deal cannot exist together; they are separate altars to different gods. There is nothing the matter with America excepting the new deal. Business has confidence in Landon the liberal. It fears Roosevelt the reactional."

BRUCKER ENDORSED

William M. Brucker, former governor of Michigan and now Republican candidate for United States senator in opposition to Senator Cousins, was the Republican group which held the first of the five U. P. rally in Newberry on Wednesday.

Mr. Brucker received the endorsement of th Luce County Republican committee. Although he was not on the program he appeared on the speakers platform on Wednesday, led an informal parade leading the Legion Band down the street, and met with many of his friends.

Lessons In Hay Will Be Feature Of Farm Roundup

Lessons that can save seed and make more hay and pasture on the quarter of a million acres in the Upper Peninsula devoted to hay will be among the hundred or more test plot and field projects offering information to the 5,000 visitors expected at the Michigan State College experiment station at Chatham in the annual Farmers' Roundup to be held Saturday, August 8.

Tours of the test plots and field experiments will be conducted on trucks starting out at half hour intervals beginning at 9:30 a. m. B. R. Churchill, research assistant in farm crops, Chatham, and D. L. Clanahan, Marquette, extension specialist in farm crops, will conduct the tours, explain the experiments and answer the questions.

According to Churchill, the farm tests have revealed some information about alfalfa and mixtures that are valuable to Upper Peninsula farming. Too many farmers, he finds, seed at a too heavy rate. Some of his plots at Chatham show little variation from seedings of four, eight and twelve pounds to the acre. The lesson in these results is that it pays money to take time to get a good variety, apply lime if necessary, and do a good job of fitting and preparing the land.

Straight alfalfa seedings are inferior usually to a mixed seeding. Some of the Churchill's plots will show results of seeding the "shotgun" mixture that includes eight kinds of alfalfa, sweet clover, red clover, alsike, white clover, orchard grass, timothy and redtop.

Welcome, Governor!

ESCANABA extends today a cordial welcome to the state's chief executive, Frank D. Fitzgerald, who is paying his first visit to the Upper Peninsula since his election to the governorship.

Affairs of the state have forced the governor to remain close to his office at Lansing during the past year and a half, there having been little time for him to travel about the state to attend various public functions as governors are expected to do.

The present tour of Governor Fitzgerald and his party marks the opening gun of the Upper Peninsula campaign of the Republicans. Incidentally, it was in Escanaba on Labor Day, 1933, following Fitzgerald's reelection as secretary of state, the sole survivor of the Democratic landslide, that the boom was launched for his gubernatorial candidacy in 1934.

Irrespective of politics, however, this community is pleased to again receive a visit from Governor Fitzgerald and is eager to accord him a warm welcome.

Forest Fire Season

DURING the current heat wave, the woods areas are dry as tinder. The mere dropping of a cigaret butt or lighted match can start a conflagration that will wipe out hundreds of acres of forest growth.

Already many fires have been started as a result of human carelessness throughout the Upper Peninsula. These blazes may not cause a heavy loss in merchantable timber, but the damage caused in the defacement of scenic roadsides, destruction of game cover and devitalization of the soil is immeasurable.

Much money is spent in maintaining a forest fire organization to keep the Upper Peninsula green. But the existence of such an organization is not enough in a hazardous season like this. The public cooperation is of vital importance.

The public can help by being careful with matches, cigaret butts and campfires. It is every citizen's duty also to suppress small fires that come to his attention while traveling along rural roads and if the blaze is of serious consequence to report to the state conservation department or U. S. Forest Service at once. Forest fires constitute a real menace to the future development of the Upper Peninsula.

Ore Traffic Heavy

FIGURES released by the Lake Superior Iron Ore association reveal that 11,677,510 tons of ore have been handled from the region up to July 1 this year as compared to 8,145,493 tons for a corresponding period last year, an increase of 3,532,017 tons or 43.36 per cent.

In this connection, it might be mentioned that the volume of all freight handled through the Sault Ste. Marie locks totaled 9,835,201 tons, the highest since June, 1930. The greatest gain of traffic through the locks was in iron ore shipments.

Water and rail traffic statistics presage a revival of the heavy industries, which are counted upon to reduce much of the industrial unemployment existing in the country today. The spurt in iron ore shipments, it is believed in some quarters, is due to efforts of the steel industry to stock up before the expected occurrence of strikes in connection with the campaign launched by John L. Lewis to organize labor in that industry.

Whatever the reason for the boom in transportation it is looked upon as a definite sign that better times are in the offing.

Heat and Tourists

TRAFFIC at the Straits of Mackinac reveals that the Upper Peninsula is enjoying a record-breaking tourist business during early July.

Undoubtedly, the heat wave which is searing the prairie regions of the Middle West is partly responsible for the earlier opening of the tourist season, but credit should be given to the fact that the promotion efforts of the Development Bureau, chambers of commerce and other civic organizations are bringing increased results.

As a refuge for heat sufferers in the large cities, the Upper Peninsula is bound to attain wide recognition. The wisecrackers might comment this week that it is just as hot here as down South, but those of us who have lived a few years here know that this is something out of the ordinary, as they would say in California.

Even though it may be hot in the daytime, communities situated along the lakes are enjoying the characteristic cool evenings that the Upper Peninsula offers during the summer. We repeat it's cool in Hiawathaland when it's hot in Indiana.

Power Of Nature

THE DROUTH in the northwest, coming as it does in a year when the rival parties are preparing once more to "do something for the farmer," is a timely little reminder that the old proverb is still true. Man proposes, but God disposes.

We can make plans, arrange finances, and erect protective walls until we are blue in the face, but in the end Nature has the last word. Whether the farmers of a given territory are to have a good or a bad year depends, in the last analysis, on mysterious forces which we cannot control and which we only begin to understand.

A great deal has been written about the extreme aridity of the last few years in the northwest. We have very properly been reminded that our use of our soil has been unwise and improvident, that we have removed our forest cover too fast, and that we have given erosion a helping hand by faulty methods of cultivation.

But the wind, as a writer in ancient Palestine remarked, bloweth where it listeth; and if it blows dry and hot, week after week and month after month, with never a rain cloud to ride on its crest, the people underneath it are going to suffer, whether they have farmed their land wisely or foolishly.

And perhaps it is not altogether a bad thing for us to rediscover this old truth. It may take a little of the twentieth century cockiness out of us.

We have a habit of talking these days as if our destinies were entirely in our own hands. We see the millennium just over the skyline, and although we may differ violently about the way to get there, we are pretty well convinced that a way does exist and that we can find it if we just hunt hard enough.

We may be right. But underneath all his modern science and invention, man is fundamentally what he was in the days of Abraham; a lonely and rather helpless creature bent down beneath a high sky through whose blue emptiness his vision cannot pierce.

He takes what the world lets him take and no more; and now and then Nature smites him with a tornado, or shrugs her shoulders in an earthquake, or bakes and parches him with a long drouth, to remind him of that little fact.

When such things happen, our modern civilization can pick up the pieces and repair the damage faster than the civilization of our forefathers.

But it can do no more than they could do to keep the damage from being done. Like them, we are here on sufferance.

No Hero Worship Here

The sideshow appearance of John Dillinger, Sr., at the Great Lakes Exposition in Cleveland is proving pretty much of a dud these days. The crowds just aren't turning out any more to view with morbid curiosity the father of an infamous gangland killer.

There was a time, a year or so back, when the elder Dillinger drew large audiences. But now, it seems, the hero worship of the gangster is about over in America. The public hascaught up with itself. If there is any hero worship at all it's for the men who have made it their business to snuff out those thugs of whom John Dillinger, Jr., was a leader.

POTATO PRICES

(Hancock Copper Journal)

Climbing potato prices indicate that Copper Country farmers, who devoted considerable acreage to potatoes this year, are due to realize some money on their crops. Potato growing has increased in popularity here in the last few years due to interest taken by aggressive farmers and even businessmen, who discovered that this region is capable of producing some of the finest potatoes grown in the middle west and in the east. As the result of the increased acreage given over to the tuber, its cultivation and marketing has become one of the leading industries in the Copper Country and the Upper Peninsula.

Because the potato industry still continues to have possibilities for the continued development of the peninsula from an agricultural standpoint and as a source for increased income for the farmer it should have further encouragement, especially from the state. Each year the state coffers yield thousands of dollars to advertise Michigan to the tourist, and, while the expenditure has brought results, figures show that the potato growing industry, is of greater value to Michigan, and is entitled to equal treatment. Those interested in the advancement of the industry do not feel tha tit should be subsidized but they do believe that the state should further contribute to advertising and cultivating the Michigan potato.

One means of helping advance the potato would be for the state to increase its contributions to potato shows, such as those that have been held in Hancock and which make the grower and the public potato-conscious.

PREMIER BLUM ON PEACE

(Milwaukee Journal)

There may or may not prove to be much of international significance in the position Premier Blum of France has taken regarding peace in Europe, but there is an element of interest and hope. Premier Blum is taking up the role that Ramsay MacDonald played in England and Briand in France.

Premier Blum speaks words carrying a bid for reapproachment with Germany. He says he is willing to meet Hitler half way on any plans the Reichsfuehrer may have to promote peace in Europe. It is true that the declaration is accompanied by a movement of troops to the northern frontier. But that apparently is to satisfy French opinion—that opinion which has talked about security all these years and has consistently doubted the good will of the Germans.

Blum the Socialist, takes up the talk where it was left by Briand in his own country and by MacDonald when he was overthrown in England. It is a contrast to talk by such men as Poincare, who frankly re-expressed the war bitterness against Germany, and by Poincare's successors, who expressed it covertly by harping on security.

How far Premier Blum can get in a difficult task, no one can tell. No one can be sure of how far France will support him, or how faithfully Hitler will respond to his overtures. But it is something to have another man come upon the French scene who appears to have the trend of mind that Briand had.

Your Nation's Affairs

BY RODNEY DUTCHER

Washington—Decades ago, a railroad magnate, one Vanderbilt, stirred up much resentment when he coined a slogan—"The public be damned!"

Roosevelt

In case you were thinking that long strides of enlightened progress have been made since, your attention is called to the reason there is no longer any federal co-ordinator of transportation, whose job was to point out methods by which railroads could save lots of money by modernization and elimination ofwaste. ination of waste. road executives, railroad labor, and even federal officials charged with regulating the railroads ganged up to block continuation of the office of Coordinator Joseph B. Eastman. They didn't say the public could be damned, but that was the effect.

Congress and Roosevelt created the office of co-ordinator three years ago because it appeared that the Interstate Commerce Commission, which includes willing workers for the railroads, was too unwieldly or inept to do much about the railroad problem.

—STIRS RAILWAY OPPOSITION—

Eastman was empowered to order railroads to consolidate facilities and otherwise cut out waste. Rather than be dictatorial, he gave the industry a chance to effect these ends by itself.

But he kept urging methods of modernization, standardization, and cheaper buying, and suggested solutions for the problem of facilities made obsolete through buses and trucks.

His idea was that the public shouldn't indefinitely carry the cost of outworn branch lines and expensive duplicate facilities. He was quite honest and blunt about it and didn't even mind criticizing huge salaries paid officials of insolvent roads.

Railroad executives, under leadership of J. J. Pelley, decided they were "being told how to run their business." They didn't like to have their mistakes pointed out to stockholders.

Behind them were New York bankers who, acting as railroad fiscal agents, foresaw reduced profits. Railroad labor unions, their membership hard hit by unemployment, made an agreement with operators to oppose continuance of the co-ordinator.

And finally there were members of the I. C. C. itself, jealous of Eastman's exalted prominence who joined in the fight.

Some time ago it became obvious that it would be impossible in face of this opposition to extend Eastman's terms, even with his powers shorn. At the end of the session Senator Burton Wheeler of Montana tried to obtain a 90-day stay in which Eastman might liquidate his office.

Pelley and Chairman George Harrison of the railway department of the A. F. of L. blocked even that. It appeared that Eastman had some reports on possible economies to make which no one wanted the public to see.

—S'PRISE FOR VAN SWERINGEN—

The recent meeting between Senator Wheeler, who is chairman of the Senate committee investigating railroad financing, and Oris P. Van Sweringen, who made something of a record as a wizard of railroad financing, was in the nature of a surprise party.

The committee had been trying to dig into the intricacies of the so-called three-billion-dollar Van Sweringen railroad empire and had met with what is considered obstructive tactics when it asked for information.

Hearings were called to put the heat on Mr. Van Sweringen. He pleaded that he was a very busy man; he would send his lawyers on a Monday, but couldn't get to Washington himself until Tuesday. The committee agreed.

The lawyers asked for a private session with Wheeler, which was granted. Wheeler was tough and demanded that they sign an agreement to produce promptly what the committee asked for. They said they would have to take time out to decide.

Meaonwhile, Wheeler held the hearing room open, all ready to start.

A couple of hours later the lawyers returned to report:

"Mr. Van Sweringen happens to be in town and would like to talk to you privately."

It developed later that Mr. Van Sweringen had motored to Washington on Sunday.

At first he emphatically refused to sign any agreement. Wheeler then announced that Van Sweringen would be called to the stand the next day, with a veiled threat of contempt proceedings.

The railroad man repented overnight, the agreement was signed, and the hearing was canceled.

"SELF AND PARTNERS (MOSTLY SELF)," by Sir Charles Holmes; Macmillan).

ONCE in a while, not too often, it is good to take a bath in British complacency. The best and least messy way of accomplishing it seems to this department to be memoir-reading. The British seem to be the least selective writers of memoirs in the world, and for this reason much of their product comes to life. An American, for example, would eliminate fully half of the material Sir Charles Holmes includes in "Self and Partners (Mostly Self)," which he publishes today on this side of the Atlantic.

Selby

Sir Charles is complacent, of course. But he is also very modest. He includes, for example, the comment Oscar Wilde made after his first meeting with Holmes: "SO dull" was the important part of it. He includes also a great number of details concerning his father, a clergyman whose career was ended by tuberculosis when Charles was about five years old. These details concern the father's removal from parish to parish, and some are exasperating. But still one learns from them.

The younger Holmes was artistically inclined. He developed friends among painters, he became a critic he had charge of the "Burlington" when that magazine was an influence, he became Slade professor at Oxford, director of the National Portrait Gallery and later of the National Gallery. And he loved trout fishing through it all, and writes well about it.

Imbedded in Sir Charles' 400-page life transcript are a good many nice scenes. For this reader, the picture of Sir Charles in Paris attending an auction of art as Big Bertha shelled the city is perhaps the best. Big Bertha frightened away so many dealers that Holmes was able to make a good thing of it. After buying an Ingres, a Delacroix, a couple of Manets and some other paintings at an advantageous price, Holmes, at dinner at the Crillon, learned of the new unified command, with Foch as commander-in-chief. And his paintings went back to London as baggage of the International Mission.

The thought of an art auction in Paris under the eye of Big Bertha is something—

LYRICS OF LIFE

THE PRICE OF THINGS

The little think too little of themselves,
The great too much. A woman's pantry shelves
Are an achievement if she keeps them filled
The while the great, self-certain and self-willed,
Do this and that, with easy disregard
Of what will happen to the price of lard.

The little are the greater. Small indeed
Will seem to greatness merely mouths to feed
And backs to clothe, the while that greatness dreams
Of mighty measures and gigantic schemes
To make the world all over in an hour—
What worries her may be the price of flour.

Here is success, the really great success:
The woman who does just as much with less
Until the thunders of the great are still
And Henry gets his job back at the mill.
And until then, in spite of laws and kings,
She's more concerned about the price of things.

New York Column

BY JACK STINNETT

NEW YORK—Big-name orchestras manage to keep in bread and butter working in New York but it is the road that pays their pent-house rents and puts champagne beside the dinner table.

And it's not the big-time cities on the road that do it . . . it's the tank towns . . . the whistle stops . . . to which the folks drive from farms and other whistle stops a hundred miles or more away to spend $2 to $4 for four hours of swinging to the tantalizing strains of some Rudy Vallee, Duke Ellington or Guy Lombardo.

JACK STINNETT

The booking agent for Glen Gray's Casa Loma orchestra was sitting behind his big, mahogany desk one day when a middle-aged individual strolled in, hat on the back of his head, thumbs in his galluses. Skipping all other formalities, too, he announced that he wanted to hire Glen Gray's orchestra for one night in a town in Arkansas that the agent could not even locate on the map.

Thinking to discourage him, the agent announced that the guarantee would be $2,000 with half of it on the barrel-head at once. The visitor peeled off 10 century bills, closed the deal on the spot.

"We played there, too," Glen says, "in a lumber yard. The man who had hired us was the local lumberyard owner. Business was bad and he had a lot of lumber on hand so he just made a dance floor out of it, advertised the big night everywhere within a radius of 200 miles and took in something in the neighborhood of $10,000."

WINSTON-SALEM, N. C., is far from a whistle-stop but Broadway bandsters are still talking about the night a local entrepreneur cleared out a tobacco warehouse there, set in a New York name band and watched the turnstiles click for 10,000 persons at $2 a head.

The band was playing on a 60-40 basis and carried away $12,000 which was just $50 a minute for every 60 seconds of horn-tooting and drum-beating.

Most of the orchestras get out at least once a year, making a circuit large or small, traveling by bus, and playing five or six nights a week, with occasional theater shows thrown in. It puts lots of coin in the savings accounts (if the boys have savings accounts) but most any player in a dance band will tell you the life they lead is far from that of old Reilly.

MAL HALLETT, for example, sometimes billed as the "monarch of swing," tells of 48 hours his boys spent a month or so back.

Having finished the last of three shows at a Boston theater, the orchestra rushed to a Hub City tavern to do a dance engagement and radio broadcast. At 3 o'clock in the morning, the band was herded aboard a plane for New York in order to be in a recording studio by 8 a. m. and after some hours of that, caught the 3 p. m. plane back to Boston for another swing on the dance floor and into the "mike."

"A band is only as good as its nerves," concludes Hallett.

News Behind The News

BY PAUL MALLON

Washington, July 8.—What smart la leaders near John L. Lewis believe he is up to in his steel organizing move is this:

Lewis

He will proceed with a hot and heavy round-up campaign for the next sixty days, and then count heads to see whether he has mustered enough union members to call a strike. He will need a strike to make his control effective, but first he must get control.

Organizing experts who know something of the problem believe his drive will hit many hidden air-pockets, that his campaign may be a matter of months instead of days, that his chances of early success are not very good.

In fact they doubt that he will round up enough workers to conduct a worthwhile demonstration any time before election.

Note—that there will be trouble and violence, few doubt. To Mr. Lewis, organizing is a heavy industry. His committee for industrial organization has half a million dollars to finance this operation, and more money will eventually be forthcoming. No one who knows Mr. Lewis doubts that the investment will be written off as a loss until his last resource is exhausted.

—POLITICS—

Mr. Lewis' largest unlisted resou right now is his close political understanding with President Roosevelt. The mine leader hitched his coal car to the Roosevelt star early in the NRA game. He lately hobnobbed near the speaking rostrum at the Philadelphia convention, as a background leader advised on the platform. Also he has become a personal friend of Prof. Tugwell.

For this reason and others the Lewis organization effort is often interpreted as an indirect Roosevelt campaign stroke. There is no question but what Lewis is counting on administration help. Also a September strike might have a tremendous effect in dramatizing Mr. Roosevelt's acceptance speech.

But some wise Democratic counselors are already complaining to Mr. Roosevelt that, if he is jockeyed into open support of Mr. Lewis, he will lose votes. In other words, the steel dramatization would bring him no votes he does not now have and would lose some he might othewise get.

—WEAKNESS—

Steel manufacturers and large consumers have been quietly stocking up in anticipation of labor troubles. Strangely, however, steel is a commodity which cannot easily be stocked. Much of the production is fabricated to order. A short strike could tie up the industry more completely than, for instance, a short coal strike.

So while the stocks of raw steel have been increased and the manufacturers and consumers are protecting themselves as well as they can, there is a definite lin to which they can go.

This is an inviting prospect for Mr. Lewis. He can make a short strike hurt.

Note—Steel operations averaged about seventy per cent capacity in June, but were down to sixty-seven per cent the early part of July. The closed combine of steel manufacturers raised prices for third-quarter delivery on a number of items of finished steel, and thus promoted business at the end of the second quarter. The rate of production would probably now be much lower, except that the manufacturers are still making deliveries on second-quarter orders. As soon as this business is out of the way, however, operations are expected to drop until fall.

—MOSLEM—

A few foreign offices would like to know what kind of a business Japan is playing with the Moslem movement from South China to Morocco.

Word has reached the offices in London and Paris indicating suspicious activities of the Japanese in encouraging the Moslem movement within the Nippon Empire and playing up to the Mohammedan national movement wherever the opportunity presents itself.

Arrangements, for example, have been made for a mission from Elazhar University in Cairo to visit Japan early next year. Lazhar is the theological and intellectual center of the Moslem world. It does not send missions on sightseeing trips.

Apprehensive British and French officials recall that the Kaiser sought to use the lever of Islam to tilt world power.

—AMBITION—

Mr. Hitler is not bluffing in his demand for the return of German colonies. London found this out the other day with a shock.

The foreign office discovered that Berlin had drawn detailed plans calling for the formation of joint chartered companies through which the German government and German finance would participate in the joint exploitation of certain existing British colonies and mandates.

Germany planned to offer the British this exploitation plan as a compromise for immediate return of the colonies to Germany. The idea was that German companies would exploit the colonies but permit them to remain under British control—for the present.

You can imagine what Whitehall thought of that.

This is the time of year when the farmers' daughters must have showers because the farmers don't.

The League of Nations seems to be worrying that Germany will take that tile, "The Free City of Danzig," too literally.

Rapid River Girl's Poem Is Published

Miss Chloe Rae Pineau, Rapid River, Michigan, is one of the writers whose work is included in The Yearbook Of Contemporary Poetry-1936, a poetry anthology which has just been published. The volume contains mainly the work of worthwhile but obscure authors who should receive greater recognition for their literary efforts, and the publishers through this collection are attempting to introduce their writings to a large and important audience. For several of those included in the volume it may be the beginning of an outstanding literary career. A nation-wide search for talented writers was conducted, and in response manuscripts were submitted by more than 4000 authors. Of these, less than 400 were chosen to have work included in the book. The publishers, encouraged by the success of their efforts to unearth new literary talent, intend to issue a similar book later this year and another widespread search for talent is now going on. Those who are interested should write to the publishers, Avon House, 151 Fifth Avenue, New York City, for a copy of the rules of the competition.

Farmers Insurance Company Holds Its Annual Meetings

The Upper Peninsula Farmers Mutual Fire Insurance company of Rock, Mich., has held its annual meetings in the following order: the annual meeting of the members was held on June 16, 1936 and the annual meeting of the newly elected board of directors was held on July 2, 1936.

The reports given in the meeting of the members showed a great improvement enjoyed during the first five months of this year. The membership in the company has increased by 60 and insurance in force by a little over $100,000.

To the board of directors the following three were elected to take place of those whose terms were expiring: Frank Ryti, Andrew Kainula, and Frank Brander. To the directors at large were elected Swen Lindfors of Chatham, August Kauppinen of Bruces Crossing, Heino Wuori of Republic, August Severinsen, of Escanaba, Albert Larson of Wallace, and E. A. Steinbrecher of Daggett. The meeting was attended by 89 policyholders from five Upper Peninsula counties.

The board of directors in its annual meeting re-elected Oscar Niemi as president, John Maki as vice president, and Arvid Mustonen as secretary-treasurer. The executive committee, finance committee, and auditors of cash accounts were elected from the members of the board of directors.

Hearing Started In Werwag Case, Lost Will Claim

Petitioners seeking to establish a lost will in the case of Fritz Werwag, deceased, gave testimony Thursday before Judge Frank J. Mileski in probate court. Testimony was introduced to support the claim that Mr. Werwag made a will a few years prior to his death, naming several Escanaba residents as beneficiaries. He had no relatives.

The hearing was adjourned to July 24, at which time the state's claim to the Werwag estate will be covered in testimony. The petition asking the probate judge to recognize a lost will was filed by William and Melvin Ehnerd. For several years, Mr. Werwag was employed by William Ehnerd.

Tom Robillard, Aged Citizen, Passes Away

Tom Robillard, 92, a long-time resident of Escanaba, died at a local hospital yesterday morning after an illness of about three years duration.

TOM ROBILLARD

Robillard was born in London, England, and came to the United States in the early sixties. He served for a period in the Civil war at the close of the conflict. He came to Beaver Island on a sailing boat in 1879 and moved to Escanaba in 1881. He was employed as a lumber shover and top dock worker, and was one of the organizers of Local 43, International Longshoremen's association.

His wife died about 15 years ago. There are no children surviving.

The body was taken to the Allo Fnueral Home to be prepared for burial, and will remain there until the funeral hour. Services will be held Saturday morning at 8 o'clock at St. Patrick's church, the Very Rev. Fr. Thomas A. Kennedy officiating, and burial will be in St. Joseph's cemetery.

Program Presented By Bethel League

Luther League of Bethel church, Stonington, will present a program Friday evening, July 10. Following the program, a business meeting will be held, and refreshments will be served.

Airport Requested At J. W. Wells Park For Emergency Use

Washington, D. C.—The establishment of an airport at J. W. Wells State Park will be recommended to the State of Michigan, as the result of an investigation undertaken by the National Park Service, it was learned today.

A survey of the National Park Service found that the establishment of a landing field at this park is "advisable" since the nearest airport is at Escanaba, nineteen miles away.

Officials of the Park Service said the establishment of a landing field at this park would make it more readily available to visitors. Another point in favor of the landing field is that it would provide a suitable base for aerial patrol of the park for fire prevention. In addition, the additional landing facilities would prove beneficial to commercial and military flying by providing additional emergency airports.

It was pointed out that the National Park Service can only assist in the establishment of the airport, and that actual purchase of suitable lands would have to be undertaken by the States. In the event that lands are purchased, the actual development of the airport will be undertaken with CCC labor.

The airport at J. W. Wells Park could best be placed outside of the park boundaries, so as not to disturb wildlife, but close enough to provide easy access, the investigation shows.

While the airport survey was undertaken by the National Park Service, the Bureau of Commerce cooperated in supplying technical information.

Now that the survey has been completed and shows the need of airport facilities near J. W. Wells State Park, the next move toward the establishment of a landing field will be up to park authorities within the State. Unless State authorities ask for cooperation the National Park Service will drop the J. W. Wells airport project, it was said.

Tomato Curry

Four good-sized tomatoes, 1 good-sized onion, 2 tablespoons salad oil, 1-2 teaspoon curry powder, 1-4 teaspoon tumeric, 1-2 cup cocoanut milk, 1 cup shredded fresh cocoanut, 1 cup rice, 2 bananas, 1-2 teaspoon salt, 1 teaspoon sugar.

Peel tomatoes and cut in halves. Peel and mince onion. Cook over a low fire in salad oil until soft and just beginning to brown. Add curry powder, tumeric and cocoanut milk. When mixture boils add the shredded cocoanut, tomatoes, salt and sugar. Cover and allow to simmer 20 minutes or until tomatoes are tender. Boil rice in salted water. When tender, pile on a hot dish and pour over the tomato sauce. Garnish with bananas which have been peeled, cut in half lengthwise and sauted in butter.

Grilled Apple Slices

Cut tart apples, in slices about an inch thick. Core, but do not peel. Dip in melted butter and then in sugar, mixed with powdered cinnamon. Arrange on broiler and dot with bits of butter. Slide under the low flame of the broiler and cook five or ten minutes on one side. Turn, dot again with butter and cook until brown.

Frozen Fruit Salad

One teaspoon gelatin, 1-3 cup orange juice, 1 cup whipping cream, 1-2 cup mayonnaise, pulp of 2 oranges, 1-8 teaspoon salt, 1 cup chopped dates, 2 tablespoons minced preserved ginger.

Soak gelatin in orange juice and dissolve over hot water. Cool and fold into cream which has been whipped until firm. Add mayonnaise and salt. Free the segments of oranges from skin and cut in halves. Add, with dates and ginger, to whipped cream mixture and turn into trays of automatic refrigerator or pack in four parts ice to one part ice cream salt and freeze about four hours. Unmold and cut in slices to serve on a bed of lettuce with mayonnaise.

James Eymer, 63, Dies In Munising

Munising.—James Eymer, 63, passed away at his home on West Munising avenue yesterday morning about 5 o'clock. Death was due to an illness of some duration.

Mr. Eymer, well known in Munising, had lived here for the past twenty-two years, coming here from the lower peninsula to work for the Cleveland Cliff's Iron Co., and making his home here continuously since that time. For the past few years he has been employed at the Munising Pique Wood Products company.

Mr. Eymer was born on February 27, 1843 in New York State and while still in his youth moved to the southern peninsula of Michigan where he was united in marriage over 40 years ago to Miss Myrtle Cline. He is survived by his wife, two daughters, Mrs. William Bauman and Fern Eymer of Munising and one son, Harold, also of this city, and four grandchildren.

Funeral services will be held Saturday afternoon from the Eymer home on Munising avenue with Rev. W. G. Prout of the Methodist Episcopal church officiating.

Pallbearers will be Dr. Glenn B. Baxter, Wesley Ward, Walfred Johnson, Lawrence Cady, Ray Hill and Mr. Radloff. Honorary pallbearers will be Bert Fisher, A. C. Martho, Mr. Hartho, O. W. McDougall, Alex Nadeau, Frank Bell, Sr.

BARN DESTROYED

Munising.—A barn, owned by John Hihalic of Van Meer was destroyed by fire Wednesday afternoon. The fire caused a blaze which spread into the woods and caused a large forest fire. The Buck Hill warden and 25 enrollees of CCC Camp Cusino extinguished the fire. The estimated damage to the barn and contents was $1,000.

ENGAGEMENT ANNOUNCED

Munising.—Announcement has been made here of the engagement of Miss Dorothy Dauzy, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Dauzy, West Onota street, to Norman Martin, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Martin, Deer street, Manistique. The date of the wedding has not been set.

All Jobless Are Asked To Register

Munising—The National Re-employment Service urges all unemployed and everyone desirous of securing employment to make registration at its offices which are located in the old city building on Munising avenue. Several governmental projects are scheduled to begin in Alger county during the month of July and everyone wanting to be considered for this work should register now.

The National Re-employment Service is a part of the U. S. Department of Labor, of which Major Howard Starrett is state director and is an independent agency which registers persons seeking jobs and refers them to employers who have jobs to fill. This registration facility is made available to both men and women over 16 years of age who are seeking jobs and referrals are made to private industry as well as to governmental and public works projects. Applications for work are taken from everyone desiring employment as well as from persons on relief. The N. R. S. does not promise employment but will exert every effort to find work for which the unemployed are best suited.

A few of the skills for which there will be an opening is listed: gas shovel, crane and dragline operators; grader operators; roller operators; master concrete finishers; finishing machine operators; oilers and greasers; carpenters, rough, finish and journeymen; paver operators; tractor and truck operators; truck owners; joint machne operators; vin operators; form setters; stone masons; bricklayers, blacksmiths, blasters and dynamiters; electricians, plumbers, deisel operators and other skills. Requests are also being received for female domestic work, maids, waitresses, stengraphers and clerical workers and sales clerks.

The N. R. S. affords everyone the benefit of their state central clearance office. The central clearance office receives requests for highly skilled and techincal men from employers throughout the state and notices of these requests are received by the local office. These requests can only befilled if person qualified to fill the positions are registered at the local office. Many of these positions offer permanent employment to the applicant at wages and salaries commensurate with the responsibility of the position.

The N. R. S. affords this employment service free of charge to both employer and applicant. Information from the state office reveals that placements with private employers have reached the highest level in almost two years and the number of jobs filled on public work at prevailing wages have increased to the highest point in three years.

The N. R. S. in Munising of which Charles Wrona is manager, can be reached by phoning 38-M. Mr. Wrona stated yesterday that all persons should register each 60 days as registrations, if not renewed, are cancelled from time to time.

Register's Office Has Big Increase In Chattel Revenue

During the first six months of 1936, fees and other revenue taken in at the office of Werner A. Olson, Delta county register of deeds, amounted to $1,709.25, compared with $1,213.95 for the same period in 1935. Of the total turned over to the county general fund so far this year by Mr. Olson, $411.90 was for chattels, now handled wholly by the register of deeds office. Chattels last year brought in only $178.70.

Receding floodwaters left a highway near Port Arthur, Tex., covered with thousands of writhing black water moccasins. Motorists said the snakes blanketed the roadway.

FLUSH OUT 15 MILES OF KIDNEY TUBES

Medical authorities agree that your kidneys contain 15 Miles of tiny tubes or filters which help to purify the blood and keep you healthy.

If you have trouble with too frequent bladder passages with scanty amount causing burning and discomfort, the 15 Miles of kidney tubes may need flushing out. This danger signal may be the beginning of nagging backache, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness.

If kidneys don't empty 3 pints a day and so get rid of more than 3 pounds of waste, poisonous matter may develop, causing serious trouble. Don't wait. Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, which have been used successfully by millions of people for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help to flush out the 15 Miles of kidney tubes. Get Doan's Pills at your druggist.

WHAT YOU EAT HAS A LOT TO DO WITH HOW YOU FEEL

Correction of Constipation* Is Often a Matter of Menus

For years, the medical profession has insisted that proper diet is more effective in promoting health than the indiscriminate use of patent medicines. Today, they are seeing their teachings bear fruit.

For instance, millions of families have learned that common constipation is largely due to insufficient "bulk" in meals. Many of them correct this condition by the regular use of Kellogg's ALL-BRAN.

This delicious cereal supplies generous "bulk" in effective form. Within the body, its "bulk" absorbs moisture, and forms a soft mass. Gently this clears out the intestinal wastes.

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN also supplies vitamin B and contains iron. It may be served as a cereal with milk or cream, or cooked into tempting muffins, breads, etc.

Two tablespoonfuls daily are usually sufficient. Stubborn cases may require ALL-BRAN oftener. If not relieved this way, consult your doctor.

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is not a "cure-all"—but it does correct common constipation.* It is guaranteed by the Kellogg Company. Sold by all grocers. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

*Constipation due to insufficient "bulk"

Department Gets Four Fire Calls Here Wednesday

The Manistique fire department received calls to extinguish four fires on Wednesday afternoon, two resulting from the burning of rubbish at business places, a grass fire and a sawdust fire.

Calls came in at 1:15 from a grass fire on North Second street and from a sawdust fire on the beach near the relocated highway US-2. The conservation department went to work on the beach fire until the local men could extinguish the Second street plaze and go to the beach.

When answering a call to a blaze in a shed in the rear of the Larson Hardware, the fire truck collided with an automobile driven by Mrs. Mike Kochen inflicting some damage to the front end of the Kochen auto. The Larson fire which started from a rubbish fire caused but little damage to the shed. Another rubbish fire which threatened to damage the building occupied by Cliff's Market on Deer street, brought the firemen out again at 2:45 o'clock in the afternoon.

CHAPTER VII

Claire watched alone at Bob Steele's bedside. Hannah had gone to get a room ready for herself, and Susie was busy about her kitchen duties. A foreboding stillness hung over the old house. Only the sound of the breeze in the pine tree and the faint, uneven dripping of the eaves could be heard. Claire moved to the window, hoping to see Pat returning.

As she came back to the side of the injured man she noticed that his eyelids fluttered. She laid her cool hand on his forehead.

"Claire." White lips formed the word.

"Yes, Bob. I'm here. What is it?"

"Dear, I—I—love you," the murmur trailed into silence, and Claire knew he was still unconscious.

For a minute she stood looking down at Bob in amazement. Of course it was only delirium; Bob didn't know what he was saying. She turned away and caught a glimpse of herself in the mirror of an ancient dressing table. If both these young men were in love with her, when she was practically engaged to Nick Baum — what a mess, what a dreadful mess it had all become!

Her thoughts were broken by the sound of the door opening, and Hannah beckoned her from the room. She led Claire to the recess of a deep bay window.

"I caught her red-handed! Going through your bag," she whispered.

"What do you mean, Hannah?"

"Just what I'm sayin'. I came into your room and there was Susie, rummaging 'round in your things. She kinder giggled and said you sent her for something."

Claire shook her head. "No, that was her own idea. But I can't imagine what she was after. I never knew her to do anything like that before."

Hannah shrugged. "I never have put anything past that woman."

"Oh, well, you're prejudiced, Hannah. But I'll speak to Susie about it." She walked back to Bob's room, more disturbed than she wanted the maid to know. For some time she had been conscious of a growing suspicion of Susie, and this news did not in any way lessen the feeling. She determined to have a straight talk with Susie as soon as she could leave Bob. She had promised Pat to stay until he came back.

But the hours went by and Pat did not return. At last Claire called Hannah and went downstairs to see if she could find him. The house seemed deserted. Dan Dallas had been sent down to the village for supplies, but where had the housekeeper disappeared, and why didn't Pat come back?

Claire turned her steps toward the little cabin where Dallas stayed. She skirted the aspen grove, aware of a growing uneasiness, and hurried on to the cabin. To her surprise, the door was partly open. She hesitated, and after knocking once or twice, went in. Nobody was there. Dan Dallas' possessions were arranged neatly and everything was scrupulously clean.

"Must have had military training," decided Claire as she noted how precisely his shoes were lined upon a low shelf, with his clothes hung carefully above. In one corner stood his rifle. She picked this up and looked at it curiously. Was this the gun Pat had quizzed Dallas about the night before? She put it back, just as she had found it.

Giving another hasty glance around, she went out quickly and closed the door behind her. As she stood on the doorstep a rat peeped down at her from the logs above her head. At her slight movement, it scurried out of sight, but the next moment something rolled over the edge of the roof and dropped at her feet, evidently dislodged by the tiny animal's panic.

Claire picked it up curiously, then gazed at it wide-eyed. A silencer for a gun. She remembered having seen one in a play. What was it doing on Dallas' roof? The shots that had killed the watch dog, and come so near to snuffing out her own life had been fired from a weapon with a silencer. There was no other way to account for the lack of sound. Dan would have to explain this to everyone's satisfaction or else—

She hastened back toward the house. As she came within sight of the kitchen door, she saw Susie carrying a small, covered tray. From her arm an unlighted lantern was swinging. Something in the housekeeper's manner made Claire draw back behind a tree to watch her. What on earth could Susie want with a lantern at this time of day? The answer was given when the woman walked quickly to a large root cellar at the back of the house, and disappeared down the steep flight of stone steps.

Claire promptly followed. The root cellar had always held a fascination for her ever since her little girl days. Now a familiar coolness rushed up to meet her, mingled with an earthly odor.

The cellar was very large and so cool that pieces of meat, securely covered with cheesecloth wrappings, could be safely hung from its rafters. Bins for vegetables took up one side of the room. Along the other side was built a huge wooden cupboard. Inside, Claire knew, were shelves holding neatly labeled glasses of jelly and preserves.

But there was no sign of Susie. Perhaps she was back in the shadowy end of the room, storing something away.

"Susie, are you there?" Claire called.

There was no reply. Puzzled, the girl walked back into the shadows. Susie undoubtedly was back there and had not heard her. This would be as good a place as any to ask her some important questions.

But, to Claire's astonishment, there was no sign of the housekeeper.

"Susie!" she called again. No answer. Claire opened the cupboard door, as though she half expected to find the jelly gone and some mysterious opening instead. But the shelves still bore their orderly rows of glasses and jars.

Claire smiled at herself as she thought of Susie'es plump figure, and then noticed how little space had been wasted in the cupboard. She must have been mistaken. Susie couldn't have come down into the root cellar, after all. Perhaps it just looked from a distance as though she had. Claire blew out the lamp and put it back on the shelf, then hurried upstairs to the open air.

The girl circled a huge woodpile, expecting to see the housekeeper, but there was no one in sight. She walked out to the big barn that now served as garage and store house. This also was empty. Claire looked about in bewilderment. Had lack of sleep begun to play havoc with her nerves? She was starting for the house when, to her surprise, she saw Susie come up the root cellar steps. This time the tray was empty and the lantern gone.

Claire's first impulse was to call to the women, but, on second thought, she stepped back into the barn and let her go into the house, unaware that she had been seen. Then Claire ran to the cellar steps and descended. A minute examination of every inch of the place revealed nothing. Where had Susie been and why? Was there some secret place under the house that its present owners knew nothing about? Claire stood, puzzling over the problem. If Pat would only come she could tell him about it. Perhaps he could find a clew that she had missed in the seemingly solid cellar walls.

At last the girl went up to the open again and walked into Susie's kitchen.

"Oh, here you are! I've been looking for you," she began. "Where were you just now?"

"I was up in the linen closet, Claire, sorting over some sheets." Susie glanced up sideways and then went on with her work.

For an instant Claire was tempted to demand the truth. Then the thought came to her that it would be better not to put Susie on her guard. So she asked, in a matter-of-fact tone, "Has Mr. Magan come in yet?"

"I ain't seen him since the doctor left," answered Susie.

Claire went into the library. Her growing uneasiness about Pat's absence, and now Susie's deliberate falsehood was beginning to fray her nerves. She distinctly distrusted the baby-faced housekeeper. Could she depend on Dan Dallas? How much did the tall, scar-faced man know about what was going on?

Claire stood before the mantel, looking at the cryptic broken arrow. What could it mean? Was her uncle trying, in vain, to point out something from beyond the grave? And why had he gone to such weird lengths to conceal this message of the House of Long Shadows? Almost as though the answer had been spoken, came the thought of Susie, and her sly, inquisitive searching.

Claire moved to the bookcase and again took down the red volume of poems in which her uncle had written the four lines of verse. "Wedded pines above me lie." She laid the book down on the radiator. Why, the great pine tree by the house was two trees grown together! Could Lyman Fosdick have been thinking of that? The girl walked to the window and looked at the majestic spreading branches. Perhaps the tree held the secret of the hidden jewel.

Suddenly her attention was caught by another sound. She held her breath and listened. Regularly and at even intervals came the same tapping noise that had startled her in Lyman Fosdick's bedroom. The room was directly above the library.

JURORS UNABLE TO DECIDE CASE

No Verdict Reached In V. Porter Negligent Homicide Case

Still deadlocked at noon Thursday, a jury in the case of Virgil Porter, charged with negligent homicide, was discharged by Judge Frank A. Bell in Delta county circuit court, and the hearing will go over to the next term of court. Attorney T. J. Rushton was appointed by the court, and represented Porter at the trial.

The jury took the case Wednesday afternoon, and deliberated until 10 p. m. before returning to their homes. They were called back again Thursday morning, and worked until noon Thursday without breaking the deadlock, which the foreman told Judge Bell was six to six.

The charge grew out of an automobile collision on June 16, in which Peter Blake of Bark River was fatally injured.

Following the completion of the Porter case, a jury was selected for trial of the case of William Swanson of Bark River, charged with complicity in arson with Chester Burnham of Bark River in 1933. Attorney Denis McGinn represented Swanson. Members of the jury were: Ebba Peterson, John Strom, Nelson Thibault, Paul Vardigan, Frank Bach, Melton Hendrickson, Albert Juneau, Frank Breault, William Eggert, Arthur Seymour, Alice Fagen and Edward LaFave.

Members of the Delta county bar, Judge Bell, and court officials were guests on the yacht of Attorney G. R. Empson of Gladstone for a cruise and dinner on Thursday evening after the adjournment of court.

Theatres

AT THE DELFT

"Palm Springs" and "The 3 Wise Guys" are showing at the Delft theatre today and Saturday.

Frances Langford, Sir Guy Standing, Smith Ballew, David Niven, Spring Byington and Ernest Cossart head the cast of Walter Wanger's production for Paramount, "Palm Springs".

This is the first time the resort near Hollywood, where movie stars rest and play between pictures, has been filmed. Because of its interesting atmosphere, it is used as the setting for the story which offers Frances Langford as a young society deb who is suddenly thrown into the gay maze of a Palm Springs vacation.

"The Three Wise Guys" brings to the screen the latest from the pen of Damon Runyon, whose stories have supplied some of the finest picture material in recent years.

Originally published in a national magazine, "The Three Wise Guys" won a place in the "Blue Plate Special," an annual compilation of the best short stories of the year.

The peak of the featured cast is three-cornered, with Robert Young and Betty Furness romantically paired, and Bruce Cabot playing the role of a redeemed gangster.

RELIEF PLANKS ARE ANALYZED

Republican and Democrat Platforms Differ on Question

BY DAVID LAWRENCE
(Copyright 1936, Escanaba Daily Press)

Washington, July 9. — Whatever perplexity the average man may have in attempting to discover the fine points of distinction that lie hidden in the ambiguous phrases of other planks in the two party platforms this year, there is no difficulty at all in noting the differences between the new deal and the Republican platforms on the subject of restoring employment and handling relief.

The new deal offers no explanation of the presence of 10,000,000 or thereabouts on the relief rolls after nearly four years of "recovery" for which it unhesitatingly claims credit. Nor is there any promise as to when the idle are to get jobs.

Jobs in Industry

It is significant that the new deal platform states that the first objectivce in relieving unemployment is to find jobs "in private industry" and where business fails to provide such employment, the government should provide work on "useful public projects."

Nowhere in the new deal platform is there any program for encouragement of private business nor any word concerning the universal complaints of business men that the new deal reform program is actually retarding recovery and preventing reemployment. The Republican platform has plenty to say about this, for it advocates specifically:

"(1) Removal of restrictions on production.

"(2) Abandonment of all new deal policies that raise production costs, increase the cost of living, and thereby restrict buying, reduce volume and prevent reemployment.

"(3) Encouragement instead of hindrance to legitimate business.

"(4) Withdrawal of government from competion with private payrolls.

"(5) Elimination of unnecessary and hampering regulations.

"Adoption of such other policies as will furnish a chance for individual enterprise, industrial expansion, and the restoration of jobs."

Specifically the foregoing means the revision of existing laws so that business can know by particular mention and listing of offenses what it can and cannot do in competition and the removal from government bureaus of the power to make by means of "regulations," a set of rules that ought to be drawn up by the congress itself if it is to have the force of law.

Complain of Uncertainty

Business contends that continual uncertainty, the introduction by government of artificial factors which raise costs and tend to produce buyers' strikes is a factor that is preventing a growth of employment.

In brief, the Republican platform argues that experimentation and "reform" have been carried to extremes, while the new deal platform merely states that it hopes industry will some day employ more people. Since the Republicans are to some extent the party of business, large and small, and since business men claim they cannot expand unless there is opportunity and unless government competition is removed, then the onlooker is asked to choose between the viewpoint of the men who have been responsible for payrolls in the past and the men who say government funds will be provided for "useful projects," while the unemployed wait for the stalemate between government and business to be solved by the voters themselves.

The Republicans, incidentally, insist that there be a prompt determination of the facts concerning relief and unemployment" which, of course, means taking a census of the unemployed, something the new deal has heretofore hesitated to do. The Republicans are advocates of public works "only on their merits and separate from the administration of relief."

So it comes down to this point: The Republicans want to see private industry unhampered in its efforts to absorb the unemployed and the new dealers want to use borrowed funds to create unemployment while waiting for business to grow through means not explained or even hinted at in the platform.

When it comes to administration of relief, there is hardly a word in the new deal platform. But the Republicans are outspoken about their plan for handling relief, which is this:

"The return of responsibility for relief administration to nonpolitical local agencies familiar with community problems.

"Federal grant-in-aid to the states and territories while the need exists, upon compliance with these conditions:

"(a) A fair proportion of the total relief burden to be provided from the revenues of states and local governments,

"(b) All engaged in relief administration to be selected on the basis of merit and fitness,

"(c) Adequate provision to be made for the encouragement of those persons who are trying to become self-supporting."

The theory back of this plank is that citizen committees of a non-partisan character, wholly detached from local governments and local politics, be appointed from such organizations as the community chest and the local welfare groups in order that graft and political corruption may be eliminated and local responsibility of the neighbors emphasized.

This, it is assumed, would cut down the number of those who have been on relief and who really are not trying to become self-supporting but prefer to remain on the dole. As for politics in relief, this has been inevitable under the present system. The new deal has managed to prevent closures by congressional inv gation, but after the electio may be taken for granted that the interest of a revised re system, which the new deal it might then welcome, the tr will be forced out and pu opinion will demand a chang method of administering problem.

"ZEKE" BONURA, Chicago White Sox's great first-baseman and slugger (he chalked up a total of 162 base hits and 21 homers in 1935) writes: "I'll 'go to bat' for HUSKIES every time."

JOHNNY REVOLTA, P. G. A. Champion, known as a stickler for training, writes: "HUSKIES have everything—whole wheat for food-energy and a swell taste to tickle your palate."

BY FRANK MAC MILLEN
(Associated Press Financial Writer)

New York, July 9 (AP)—Traders climbed aboard the buying bandwagon in today's stock market and rode into a substantial rally.

Encouraged by lessening tension over the drought and steel labor problems, together with favorable business and industrial news, participators in the day's parade pushed leading issues up fractions to 3 or more points, a number to new highs for the year or longer.

Helpful to brokerage sentiment was the fact that the volume expanded considerably on the advance, transfers totalling 1,291,500 shares. It was the largest aggregate since June 25, last. The Associated Press average of 60 stocks showed a net gain of .6 of a point at 63.9. This index was less than a point under its top for the year.

The utilities, steels and rails led the early climb. They were joined later by the coppers, merchandising issues, motors, liquors and specialties.

Grains Irregular

Rains in parts of the stricken crop districts brought renewed hopes that the farm situation might not be as bad as was at first thought. Grains turned somewhat irregular on the moisture reports. Wheat at Chicago closed up 3-8 to 1 5-8 cents a bushel and corn was off 1 1-8 to up 1-8. Cotton at New York was a bit nervous throughout, ending 10 cents a bale lower to 45 cents higher.

Carrier liens led a forward thrust in the bond division. Foreign currencies were narrow.

Merchandising shares responded to figures indicating that June sales were the best for any month this year for many stores.

The transportation section attracted attention on forecasts of continued revenue gains by some leading roads.

The utilities again saw visions of better earnings and dividends. Motor issues responded to the record distribution last month of several makes. Broader buying of foreign copper and the improved statistical position of the industry helped shares in this class. Hot weather spurred some of the soft drink equities.

Among conspicuous shares in the day's push were U. S. Steel at 59 5-8, General Motors at 68, Chrysler at 112¼, Bethlehem at 49 1-8, International Paper preferred at 39¾, American Radiator at 20 5-8, Woolworth at 53¼, Montgomery Ward at 43, Schenley at 40 3-8, Coca-Cola at 105 3-8, and Du Pont at 152¾.

American Telephone was unchanged at 167½ following the decision of the New York Telephone Co., a leading subsidiary, to accept the rate reductions ordered by the state commission.

Curb Stocks Show Sizeable Gains In Increased Trading

New York, July 9 (AP)—Utilities, mines and industrial specialties led the curb market forward today for sizeable gains in more active trading.

Up fractions to 2 points or so were Aluminum Co. of America at 126, American Gas & Electric at 40 3-8, Electric Bond & Share at 23¾, Dow Chemical at 115¼, Newmont Mining at 83¾, Sunshine Mining at 13, United Light & Power "A" at 7 3-8 and Midland Steel at 23½.

Fractional losses were recorded by American Cyanamid "B.55 at 33 3-8, Pantepec Oil at 5 3-8 and United Gas at 8 3-8.

Transactions totalled 350,000 shares against 207,000 Wednesday.

CHICAGO GRAIN

Chicago, July 9—Swiftly moving upward in price late today, wheat rose 2½ cents above early bottom levels, and regained market leadership that was lost temporarily to corn.

Bulges of wheat values at Winnipeg were largely responsible for renewal of strength here. Authoritative estimates were current that 10 to 12 million acres of Canadian wheat are in grave danger from prolonged drought and abnormal heat, with a great portion of this acreage already far gone. Drought period gains of wheat prices now total approximately twenty cents a bushel.

Wild fluctuations of the corn market put wheat during much of the day more or less into eclipse, but at the last the corn pit was again subordinate to wheat. A smash of 3½ cents a bushel in corn prices because of partial relief from corn belt drought and heat was largely overcome.

Wheat closed nervous, 3-8 to 1 5-8 cents above yesterday's finish, July 1.06 1-8 to 1.06¼, September 1.06 to 1.06¼, December 1.07 1-8 to 1.07¼; corn at 1 1-8 decline to 1-8 advance, July 81 5-8 to 81 3-4, September 78 7-8 to 79, December 73 3-8 to 73½, oats unchanged to ½ higher, September 37 5-8, and rye 7-8 to 1 1-8 up, September 71 3-4. The outcome in provisions varied from 2 cents setback to a gain of 10 cents.

Provisions averaged lower, responsive to downturns of hog values and of corn.

Closing indemnities: Wheat—July 1.02½-1.11¼; September 1.03 to 1.03 1-8, 1.10; December 1.04 to 1.04 1-8, 1.11. Corn—July 79 3-8 bids; September 76¼ to 78 3-8, 82½; December 70 3-4, 77. Rye—July 70, 75 1-8; September 68 3-4, 75; December 70 3-4, 76.

BY G. A. PHILLIPS
(Associated Press Financial Writer)

New York, July 9 (AP)—All sections of the domestic corporate bond market rallied vigorously today under leadership of rails and utilities.

As in the past several days, issues representing the Van Sweringen holding companies featured the upturn. U. S. government bonds did little either way but maintained a steady undertone.

Gradually expanding earnings of railroads in general and bright prospects painted for Chesapeake & Ohio and other roads identified with the Chesapeake Corp. and Alleghany Corp. furnished the main impetus for another bullish demonstration in these liens.

New highs were registered by Chesapeake Corp. 5s of 1947 at 149, the 5s of 1944 at 131½, Alleghany 5s of 1950 at 84 7-8 and the stamped 5s of the same maturity at 64½. Other rail bonds joining in the upturn included "Katy" adjustment 5s at 62¾, also a new high, Lehigh Valley 4½s at 55½, Illinois Central 4¾s at 76 3-8 and Erie refunding 5s at 80½.

The foreign department recorded little change.

Government issues remained in the background all day. Closing prices ranged from an advance of 2-32 of a point in treasury 3 1-8s of 1946 to a decline of 4-32 in Federal Farm Mortgage 3s of 1947.

The Associated Press average of 20 rails was up .3 of a point at 92.3, the 10 utilities improved .2 of a point at 102.4 and the average of other groups was unchanged to .1 of a point higher.

Transfers of all bonds totalled $11,418,000, par value, compared with $10,387,000 the day before.

FUNDS ARRIVE FOR OLYMPICS

U. S. Will Have Complete Women's Track Team at Berlin

BY SCOTTI. RESTON
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

New York, July 9 (AP)—The United States will be represented by a full women's track and field team in the 12th Olympics at Berlin despite the persistent Olympic fund-crisis, it was indicated today at Olympic headquarters.

This change was effected by the women athletes themselves, who simply went out and started rolling money into the fund.

The girls raised the money by selling Olympic badges in the New York streets, by dunning public officials and asking the aid of newspapers.

Yesterday only five women were sure of going but it was revealed today that the extra funds now becoming available have led Olympic officials to reserve 14 places for them on the Manhattan which sails from New York Wednesday.

Gymnasts Get Aid

Meanwhile, nine other teams had reached their quota but six others were well below.

The teams sure of financing a full membership are the men's track and field, weight lifters, field hand ball, penthalon, equestrian (already in Europe), yachting, boxing, wrestling and basketball.

The basketball team, lacking only a small amount, is making this up by driving through from Los Angeles, and points in the middle west.

The teams still lacking enough money are the men's and women's swimming, rowing, fencing, field hockey, canoeing and gymnastics.

The mayor of West New York, Frank Effert, today came to the support of the gymnasts. He contributed to their fund mainly to help Frank and Irma Haubold, the only husband and wife combination eligible to represent the United States.

Largest single contribution of the day came from the New York A. C. for $5,000. Smallest and most interesting came from a nine-year-old child in New York's Harlem. She sent a letter to Gustavus T. Kirby, treasurer of the Olympic fund, and attached 10 three-cent stamps. The letter said:

"I heard you need money, and I want Jesse Owens to be on the team. Please see that he gets this."

One of the town's richest heiresses contributed $1,000, and a check for $2,000 arrived from the Chicago campaign fund.

With six days yet to go, the fund is now $75,000 short of its quota.

CARDS DEFEAT NEW YORK, 6-3

Victory Helps St. Louis Retain League Lead in National

St. Louis, July 9 (AP)—The Cardinals held onto first place in the National League today by defeating the New York Giants 6 to 3, through timely hitting and the effective pitching of Roy Parmelee.

Although outhit, 8 to 10, the Cards made their blows count, putting together three in the second, including Ducky Medwick's homer, for four runs, and adding another run in the fourth on a single hit, and their last tally in the eighth on two safe blows.

The game marked Parmelee's first starting appearance since he dislocated a finger in Boston about three weeks ago. He had the Giants helpless in all but the third inning, when a walk, singles by Pinch Hitter Eddie Mayo and Jim Ripple, and Burgess Whitehead's double brought in all the Giant runs.

Lefty Al Smith, who was charged with the defeat, his seventh against eight wins, lasted two innings before giving way to a pinch hitter. Frank Gabler and Dick Coffman finished the mound assignment.

Score by innings:

New York.. 003 000 000—3 10 1
St. Louis.... 040 100 01x—6 8 0

Smith, Gabler, Coffman and Mancuso, Danning; Parmelee and Davis.

England's national income is $4,046,895,000. Of this amount $1,144,660,000 is derived from income and property taxes, $895,885,000 from customs duties, and $535,000,000 from excise duties.

Rowe Comes in as Relief Hurler to Check 9th Inning Rally

Washington, July 9 (AP)—A big ninth inning splurge gave Detroit a 10 to 7 victory over Washington today to open the Tigers' invasion of the east and enable them to hold second place in the American League by two percentage points over the Boston Red Sox. The Sox, who also won and Detroit remain virtually deadlocked, with the advantage of the pace-setting New York Yankees trimmed to nine games.

Holding a two-run lead going into the ninth, the Tigers scored five runs on two hits, three passes, two stolen bases and an error, one of four Washington misplays.

Their scoring spree came in handy for the Senators pushed across four runs themselves in their half of the inning. The rally drove Joe Sullivan off the mound, and Schoolboy Rowe came in to quell the uprising, finally fanning Red Kress for the last out with two men on base.

Sullivan, who relieved the starting pitcher, Roxie Lawson, in the third inning, received credit for the victory. Earl Whitehill, who started for Washington, gave way to a pinch hitter and was replaced by Bill Dietrich in the seventh, Dietrich being charged for the loss. Cohen relieved Dietrich during the big Tiger ninth.

Gerald Walker led the Tigers at bat with three singles in five appearances at the plate, while Goose Goslin, Jack Burns and Billy Rogell each collected two safeties, one of Rogell's being a double.

SPILLING the DOPE

BY JOHNNY INKSLINGER

(Reprinted from Sporting News)

St. Louis, Mo.—Rog Hornsby, who broke more hearts—pitchers'—when he was in his heyday in the National League than perhaps any other batter, the votes of the Pop Anson and Hans Wagner delegates notwithstandng, now is a-gin' the sluggers. The iconoclastic Hornsby is a-gin' 'em because he believes so much pitching is being sacrificed on the altar of boom-boom exploitation that the game is beginning to suffer. In short, the Rajah feels that something must be done to slow down the ball and give the throwers a chance, not for the salvation of the Browns, but for the game, presented as a major league attraction.

The question that brought out the condemnation from Hornsby was:

"What is your reaction to the many high-score, long-drawn-out games this year?"

Rog lost no time tearing into the subject.

"Remember, I'm not trying to dictate to the league, the league president or the club owners," warned the former National League batting champion. "This is merely my opinoon—since you have asked me what I think."

With that, it was time to pull out the copypaper and pencil.

"Personally, I think major league baseball, as it is going, is verging on bush league stuff, because the pitchers, as represented by the present crop, cannot match the hitters," exploded Rog. "By that I mean we can't keep people coming to our games as long as we are having these 18 to 6 and 16 to 14 games. I may be wrong, but it occurs to me that the public is becoming bored. The fans get home too late. I'll admit that a home run is all right. It is all right, if the home club comes through on one of them. But there is too much run-making. The games take too long to play. Runs are running us into the ground."

What would Hornsby do to correct this condition?

He would slow down the ball. By all means, he would put the ball back where there could be a scientific attack—where a 3 to 1 and 2 to 0 games would take the place of the lopsided contests now being waged in both of the major leagues.

"I don't think the home run should be eliminated," continued Rog. "It has become part of the game. But I do say that something must be done to protect the pitchers.

"They tell us—and I believe it—that pitching is from 75 to 80 per cent of a ball game. Then, why should pitching be eliminated, almost entirely, in the interest of hitting?

"Perhaps I can make a better point," he continued. "Take my Browns. If we were able, through pitching defense, to protect ourselves, say, under a three, two, or even four-run defeat, we would look good. I don't say that we would win any more games, if the ball had some of the rubber taken out of it, but I do argue that we would look better, even if we were losing. That's the point I'm driving at—and that's the point that must be seen sooner or later.

"The other day 106 runs were scored in six games. That isn't right. There isn't any chance to play scientific ball under present conditions, unless you happen to have a hot pitcher. By that I men, a pitcher who is hurling a shut-out game, or pretty close to it."

BILL TERRY TO QUIT AS PLAYER

Injured Knee Prompts Manager to Seek Retirement

St. Louis, July 9 (AP)—Memphis Bill Terry, New York Giants' first baseman since the McGraw era, indicated today that his playing career is at an end.

Picking up the Giants for their game with the Cardinals here today, after receiving treatment for his ailing knee at Memphis, Terry said he probably will go on the voluntary retired list to make way for another active performer on the roster.

The Giants' manager did not say whether he would ever try a playing comeback, but he was certain that he will not be in action any more this season. By going on the retired list, it was believed he would replace himself on the active roster with a player who could assist Sam Leslie with the first basing job.

On his visit to Memphis, where he went for treatment, giving up a chance to play in the all-star game he was advised by his physician, Dr. J. Spencer Speed that an operation should be performed for the repair of a torn semi-lunar cartilege in his knee.

Led League in 1930

He said today he will have the operation performed after the season ends, but he was not certain whether healing the knee would enable him to resume play.

Terry's last appearance for this season—and possibly his entire career—was on June 26, when he played the first two innings of a game with the Cubs at the Polo-grounds. For much of the early part of this season, he led the National league in batting, until his knee ailment forced him to take only occasional turns at bat and afield.

He has been in organized baseball since 1914, except for a three year lapse between 1918 and 1921. He came to the Giants in 1923 from Toledo, and soon afterward succeeded George Kelly on first base. In June, 1932, he was named manager to succeed the late John McGraw.

In 1930, he won the National league batting championship with a mark of .401. For his 13-year major league career, he has an average of .342.

Athletics Defeat St. Louis Browns

Philadelphia, July 9 (AP)—Unloosing a barrage of 15 hits that included home runs by Pinky Higgins and Bob Johnson, the Athletics staved off a drop into last place today by beating the St. Louis Browns, 7 to 5, in the opening contest of a three-game series.

Wally Moses turned in a perfect day at bat by poling four singles and a two-bagger in five times up.

Dusty Rhodes, who started on the mound for the A's, was relieved in the fifth by Kelley. Each of them allowed the Browns only three hits. After Hogsett yielded ten hits to Philadelphia in six innings, Managar Hornsby put in Knott to stem the tide.

CUBS WIN FROM DODGERS TWICE

Twin Victory Puts Chicago Team Near First Place

Chicago, July 9. (AP)—The Cubs knocked at the door of the National league lead again today, advancing to within a half game of first place by trimming the Brooklyn Dodgers in both ends of a doubleheader.

Despite a fine pitching performance by Van Mungo in the opener the Cubs outlasted the Brooklyns to win 4 to 3 in 13 innings.

In the nightcap, with Phil Cavarretta hitting a homer and Frank Demaree getting four hits in four times at bat, Bill Lee came through with a 5 to 4 win.

Rookie Eddie Wilson hit a homer with two on for the Dodgers in the second game.

BIG SIX STANDINGS

(By The Associated Press)

Paul Waner, the "big poison" half of the Pittsburgh Pirates' brother act, stepped into the thick of the National League batting race yesterday, getting four hits in five times at bat to boost his mark nine points to .353. His average deadlocked him with Dolph Camilli of the Phillies in the National League trio of baseball's "Big Six" in hitting. Camilli got three hits in five trips to the plate yesterday.

The standings (three leading hitters in each league):

	AB	R	H	Pct.
Gehrig, Yanks	291	93	113	.388
Appling, White Sox	218	36	82	.376
Dickey, Yanks	227	58	83	.366
P. Waner, Pirates	278	49	98	.353
Camili, Phillies	275	55	97	.353
Jordan, Bees	313	51	109	.348

(Standings do not include night game.)

Pittsburgh Clips Philadelphia, 16-5

Pittsburgh, July 9 (AP)—Paul Waner and Bill Brubaker led a batting attack on three Philadelphia pitchers today and the Pirates scored a 16 to 5 victory.

The elder Waner drove in six runs with a single, two doubles and a triple, while Brubaker accounted for five with a single and a pair of doubles.

Red Lucas started for Pittsburgh giving way to Ralph Birkofer in the second. The Pirate southpaw received credit for the game.

Fabian Kowalik and Emil Moore lasted but two innings for the Phils. Joe Bowman, hurling from the third, cracked the Pirates until the eighth when they closed the game with a four-run attack.

Cleveland Indians Lick Yankees, 11-4

New York, July 9 (AP)—The Cleveland Indians were as hot today as the 102-degree temperature at Yankee Stadium, and slugged out an 11 to 4 triumph on five home runs, three of them in one inning, to equal the American League record.

Two of the round trip clouts were by Hal Trosky, boosting his mark to 22 for the season, to go into a deadlock with Jommy Foxx for the major league lead.

His first four-bagger came in the big second inning, when the Indians shoved five runs across and took a lead they never gave up. Roy Weatherly and Joe Vosmik also smashed out homers in the same frame.

Earl Averill was the other Indian homer-hitter, getting his in the fifth, while Lou Gehrig hammered out his 21st of the year with a mate on base in the first inning, when the Yankees got to Johnny Allen for all four of their runs. Denny Galehouse, who relieved Allen after the Yanks wound up their scoring in the first, and Oral Hildebrand, who took Galehouse's place in the eighth, because of the heat, stopped "Murderers' Row" completely.

Cleveland 052 020 200—11 15 0
New York 400 000 000— 4 8 1

Allen, Galehouse, Hildebrand and Pytlak; Pearson, Broaca, Hadley, W. Brown and Dickey.

Boston Sox Trim Chicago By 7 to 2

Boston, July 9 (AP)—Wes and Rick Ferrell collaborated to give the Boston Red Sox a 7-2 victory over the rival Sox from Chicago today in the series opener.

It was the 12th pitching victory for Wes, who was clipped for 10 hits, and the fifth triumph in a row for his teammates. Both of the brothers lashed out two singles against Johnny Whitehead, the starting Chicago pitcher but the individual batting honors went to Bill Werber, who drove in four runs with a triple and a single while batting in the leadoff spot.

bish, slashing, brush piles or stumps."

The order is to become effective 24 hours after its issuance. Its issuance followed reports that tinder-like conditions exist in the upper portion of the lower peninsula and in the upper peninsula.

Tawas City, Mich., July 9. (AP)—A raging fire destroyed 150 acres of cut-over timber land today at Sand Lake, near here, before the blaze was brought under control by 200 CCC workers.

The CCC men fought the fire for several hours. For a time a few cottages and cabins were threatened.

The fire was attributed to a careless smoker. Officials of the Huron national forest said the forest would be closed to campers during the present period of extreme dryness.

PLAN TO RUN FOR GOVERNOR IS ANNOUNCED

talents would be utilized in other fields.

"In all the circumstance, therefore," the president said, "I feel that I cannot do otherwise than to hold your resignation in abeyance with the understanding that, effective September 5, next, you will be given leave of absence for two months without pay.

"Meanwhile, if developments should compel, at a later date, a reluctant acceptance of your resignation, I shall find reassurance in the fact your suberb knowledge of the Philippine affairs, as well as the rich experience which you have gained will be available always through the wise counsel you can give us in time to come."

Murphy was sent to the Philippines when Homer S. Cummings, who had been slated for that post, was made attorney general after the sudden death of Senator Walsh of Montana who had accepted the cabinet post.

Before leaving tonight for Detroit Murphy busied himself with conferences with war and state department officials on future economic relations between the United States and the Philippines.

He indicated this work would compel him to return to Washington and keep him here most of the time until his leave of absence becomes effective in September.

SOME BITS OF DROUGHT AREA GET SHOWERS

ties were not sufficiently impressed yet with the magnitude of the disaster in the west.

In North Dakota, Gov. Walter Welford announced he would offer a state drought and pest insurance measure at the next session of the legislature.

New York's concern over a possible scarcity of milk and other foodstuffs in the metropolitan area prompted State Agricultural Commissioner Peter Ten Eyck to call a conference for Saturday to discuss the situation.

Though showers aided some of the forest fire fighters in western states, reports from Sheridan, Wyo., showed many head of cattle and wild animals had perished in the blazes.

With temperatures in many South Dakota communities high above 100, Mayor George Fredericks of Mitchell proclaimed tomorrow a day of prayer for rain. Thirteen churches of the city agreed to cooperate. Their bells will toll a signal for personal prayers in homes and places of business at 11 a. m. There will also be special church services.
